Hoffa planned meeting with Mafia figure

LAKE ORION, Mich. (AP) — Former Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa was planning to meet a reputed Mafia figure and a former union vice president the day he disappeared, a source said Saturday night.

The source, who is close to the missing ex-labor leader, told The Associated Press that one of the men, Anthony "Tony Pro" Provezano, bore a grudge against Hoffa from old prison days.

Hoffa was reported missing Thursday after he failed to return from a scheduled Wednesday appointment. His family said they believe the 62-year-old longtime labor boss was kidnaped.

In Chicago, an unnamed source told the Chicago Sun-Times that Hoffa was "abducted and possibly slain," because he was about to expose crooked loans about to be made from the union's pension plan.

Many union officials privately express similar views about Hoffa's fate, but police said late Saturday they have no clues to indicate either an abduction or a murder took place.

The AP source said Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, a longtime Hoffa friend with a criminal record dating back to 1937, arranged the scheduled Wednesday meeting, probably to mediate the long-simmering dispute between Hoffa and Provenzano.

Sources told AP that their names and the name of Detroit labor figure Leonard Schultz surfaced after a psychiatrist hypnotized two men who said Hoffa told them who he was going to meet Wednesday, but that they later forgot.

The feud between Hoffa and Provenzano "dates back to prison time in Lewisburg," Pa., where they served time together, the source said.

The source said during their jail terms, Provenzano, forced to step down as head of Teamsters local 560 in Union City, N.J., asked Hoffa to amend the union's pension plan so he would qualify.

The source said Hoffa told Provenzano that he would not be able to change the union's pension plan to include him.

The source said Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons has agreed to return Provenzano to the Teamsters international payroll as of Oct., 1975. A Teamsters spokesman in Washington had no comment.

Hoffa has also been feuding with Fitzsimmons, and has said he would like to run against Fitzsimmons for union president in 1976 if a clemency restriction is lifted.

On Saturday, responding to an anonymous phone tip, police searched a cornfield in Michigan's Irish Hills, more than 100 miles west of nearby Bloomfield Hills, where Hoffa was last seen, but found no trace of Hoffa.

Police said they dug in some spots that appared suspicious, but turned up no clues.

Employes of Airport Service Lines, a small business where Hoffa has a financial interest, told the family Hoffa dropped by Wednesday and mentioned who he was going to meet. But they said they didn't recall the names.

The family brought in physicians to hypnotize the employes, and the source told The Associated Press that under hypnosis, they remembered.

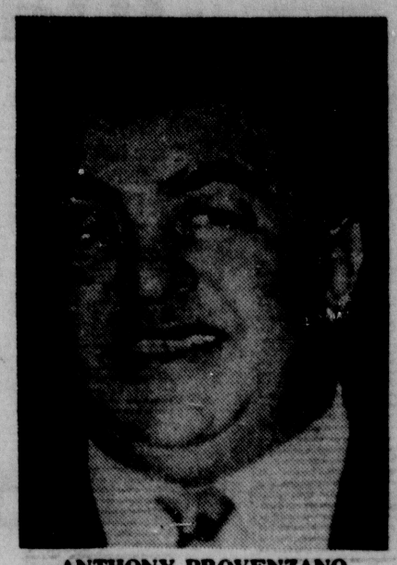

"Police now know who Jimmy was going to meet," Wednesday afternoon outside the Machus Red Fox, a fashionable Bloomfield Hills restaurant, the source said.

Friday, Hoffa's daughter, Barbara Crancer, said "investigators" believe two associates of "Tony Jack" Giacalone, may have taken her father hostage.

James P. Hoffa said Saturday, "All we have left is hope." He said the the family feels helpless.

The Teamsters union has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons responsible for Hoffa's mysteriois disappearance.

Hoffa was international president of the Teamsters union from 1957 to 1967 when he went to jail for mail fraud and jury tampering. He is barred from participating in union activities until 1980 under the terms of a clemency order which brought his release from prison in 1971.

Arbitrator hears testimony on police salaries

'Can't make same mistake twice'—city on pay issue

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Characterizing the city's salary agreement with the Pomona Firemen as a "bad bargain," Pomona officials Saturday testified before an arbitrator that the city cannot afford to compound their mistake by granting the city's policemen similar pay ncreases.

Policeman versus fireman pay was the key issue raised time and again by police negotiators during the six hour arbitration session at Pomona City City Council Chambers, while city officials claimed the cost of parity with Los Angeles police and fireman was financially impossible for Pomona taxpayers to bear.

City officials, however, find themselves in the unfortunate position of having already granted Pomona firemen parity with Los Angeles firefighters, and were hard pressed to justify why the city's policeman deserve no better.

Attorney Stephen H. Silver, representing the Pomona Police Officers Association, hammered away at Pomona's unique position of paying its firemen more than its policeman.

"Is there any jurisdiction in Southern California, besides Pomona, that pays more to firemen than policemen," asked Silver of city officials, who responded that they were unaware of any other city in that position.

Firemen in Pomona are currently earning approximately 1.5 per cent more per month than policemen, and firemen will receive an approximate 13 per cent increase next April under the three-year agreement, signed last year, that ties their pay to Los Angeles firemen.

Silver called the firemens' agreement accurate and fair and contended that Pomona policemen should likewise be compared with Los Angeles policemen, who are reportedly the highest paid officers in the nation.

Attorney David Miller, representing the city, countered that the city had erred in granting the firemen an overly generous pact last year, and could not find any justification for erring a second time with police.

He added that parity had never been an issue in past years when police were earning more than firemen.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce testified that the city's budget could not allow for a 15 per cent increase for police without major cuts.

He estimated such an increase would cost the city about $500,000.

Mayor Ray Lepire testified that unemployment in the city was presently higher than 12 per cent, that the median income was about $10,000 and that the city council was making a determined effort to hold the line on property taxes. He said that it was his opinion that the city could not afford a 15 per cent increase for police.

The city's latest offer to police is 2.5 per cent.

Both sides called a number of other witnesses to testify concerning facts, figures, charts, diagrams and various calculations to back up basic arguments, all of which were noted and received by arbitrator Bill Rule.

Under the advisory arbitration process, Rule will study Saturday's testimony and supporting documents and make a recommendation concerning the wage dispute to the Pomona City Council in about five days.

At that time, the council will have the choice of accepting the arbitrator's recommendation and seek an agreement based on it, or reject the recommendation and seek an agreement based on further negotiations with the Police Officers' Association.

2 sought in gang-related shooting

Police today are searching for two men in connection with the shooting of an 18-year-old Pomona man, in what officers said may have been another flareup of gang warfare.

Jimmie Joe Avila was reported in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Pomona Valley Community Hospital after the shooting late Friday night.

Two men reportedly approached Avila as he stood talking with some friends, at 947 S. Park Ave., at 11:30 p.m.

One of the men suddenly pulled a .38 caliber revolver, and shot Avila in the back and right arm, officers said. The two then fled.

Ford dances in the streets with Romanians

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — President Ford said today he and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev made encouraging progress on a nuclear arms agreement during their Helsinki summit. Then he flew into Bucharest and joined in a Romanian folk dance with crowds standing 10 deep to cheer him.

Welcomers waved small American and Romanian flags and dancers kicked and whirled as Ford and Romanian leader Nicolae Ceausescu drove the festive route from the airport.

At Victory Square, the two men left the Mercedes limousine. Members of the Young Pioneers — Romania's equivalent of the Girl Scouts — kissed Ford and gave him a scarf, then he and Ceausescu joined hands with the dancers in a circle.

Ford, who had appeared tired when he left Helsinki, waved enthusiastically to the throngs, a broad grin stretched across his face.

Oroville quake area hit by aftershocks

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Strong aftershocks jolted this small Northern California town Saturday as officials surveyed damage from the state's biggest earthquake in 4½ years.

Friday's quake, measuring 6.1 on the Richter scale, damaged several buildings and caused about 10 minor injuries. It was felt across a 200-by-300-mile area of Northern California and western Nevada.

The quake was the strongest to hit earthquake-prone California since 64 persons died in a Los Angeles tremblor in 1971.

Three minor quakes rocked the Oroville area Friday morning before the major tremblor at 1:20 p.m. local time. Police said frequent aftershocks rattled the town's 15,000 residents Friday night and Saturday but there were no reports of further damage or injuries.

Scientists at the California Institute of Technology said two of the aftershocks measured about 5.5 on the Richter sale.

The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus, a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

"They went on all night long," said Oroville Police Sgt. Gary Staves. "Ones that you can feel are going about every hour."

Don Shaffer, editor of the Oroville Mercury Register, said residents "generally are pretty nervous because of these continuing shakes. Many of them fear they are building up to something."

But Clarence Allen, professor of geology and geophysics at Caltech, said aftershocks are normal following a major quake. "If what has happened typically in the past happens again, the Oroville quake will be followed by a series of aftershocks of decreasing magnitude and increasing intervals," he said.

"Based on past experience the chance of anything equal to or larger than Friday is exceedingly small."

Sacramento also jolted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A mild earthquake, the fifth to hit Northern California in two days, jarred the state capital today. There were no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

"We felt this building shake all over the place," said Sgt. Arthur Green of the Sacramento Police Department.

Security guards at the University of California at Berkeley said the temblor set off the earthquake alarm at the seismology station there.

But there was no immediate word on the quake's magnitude or where it was centered.

Two others injured

Pomona youth, 17, killed in car crash

A 17-year-old Pomona youth was killed late Friday night when the car in which he was riding collided with another auto on Valley Boulevard, west of Ridgeway Street.

Frank Peyton Stegar III was pronounced dead at 9:56 p.m. at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Two other persons, Charles Thompson, 16, of Pomona, and Richard Garlow, 18, of Walnut, also were injured.

Thompson suffered a possible broken jaw and fractured skull, police said, and was taken to County-USC Medical Center. Garlow had cuts and bruises and was treated at the Pomona hospital and released.

Both Stegar and Thompson were passengers in a car driven by Howard Love, 19, of Pomona, which police say turned left in front of Garlow's car. A third car driven by Tony Hales, 20, of Azusa, was struck by Garlow's auto after the first collision. Hales was unhurt.

Love's car slid sideways, jumped a curb and hit a traffic signal pole.

Joan Little: 'have to face the judge'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little, accused in the slaying of a jailer she says tried to rape her, says she has to remind herself she has to face the judge every morning and may be executed.

"At the beginning of this trial, I thought maybe I could just get sick," she said in an interview in a restaurant. "But it's not like a job when you can call in sick and it won't matter. I have to face that judge every morning."

"I can't be like Alice in Wonderland," she said in a news conference earlier in the week several days before the restaurant interview with The Associated Press.

"I'm going to have to continue to say to myself that this is real, because the prosecution is going to try to get a conviction and put me in the gas chamber," said the 21-year-old black woman, who is on trial charged with murdering the white jailer.

Miss Little, born and raised in a small North Carolina town, has become a cause for civil rights and women's rights advocates. Cameras and microphones are thrust at her daily as she enters and leaves the courthouse and journalists from across the nation and Europe ask for interviews.

In her public role, Miss Little is subdued. She echoes the words of her attorneys and characterizes her case unemotionally in terms of racist and sexist oppression.

Relaxing with friends, Miss Little is far more outgoing. Eating pizza and drinking beer in a restaurant last week, she laughed and talked animatedly, singing along with tunes on a juke box.

She said she doesn't get to go out much and spends most of her time resting in her hotel, where the defense team has rented an entire floor. Citing security, her attorneys limit her movements and send a body guard with her wherever she goes.

According to defense attorney Jerry Paul, "She goes out with friends who can protect her."

The slaying of the jailer in her hometown of Washington, N.C., last Aug. 27 led to the quiet young woman's fame. She was confined in the Beaufort County jail awaiting an appeal of a breaking and entering conviction when jailer Clarence Aligood, 62, was found stabbed to death in her cell. Miss Little said she stabbed him with his own icepick to stop a sexual attack.

The trial was moved to Raleigh because the defense claimed she could not get a fair trial in eastern North Carolina.

Miss Little says she was very gentle until she was sent to prison and it is a gentle, feminine image she is portraying in court.

She wears soft, silky pastel dresses and blouses and discreet gold jewelry. Her afro was straightened and her hair cut short after the first week of jury selection and she now has a young, conservative appearance.

3 men rob Pomona eatery, fire shots

Three gunmen robbed a Pomona restaurant early Saturday, then fired shots inside the building and kicked a customer in the neck.

Police said the robbers entered Mr. K's Restaurant, 2085 W. Holt Ave., at 12:45 a.m., displayed a .22 caliber rifle and .38 caliber revolver, and took $180 from the cash register.

While one gunman was removing the money, another entered and kicked Sylvester Thomas, 51, of Pomona, in the neck. Thomas was later treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

The robbers fired six shots into the walls and ceiling of the restaurant, before fleeing the location by car.

All three gunmen were described as young male blacks. One was six-feet, 160 pounds, wearing a wide brim hat; the second was 5-8, 160, wearing a floral shirt and a stocking across his forehead; and the third was 5-6, 130 pounds with dark shirt and light pants.

Wallace 'gunshy' as flashbulb goes 'pop'

MAYFIELD, Ky. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace was addressing a huge political rally in Western Kentucky Saturday when a flashbulb in the camera of a photographer ten feet away from him went off with a sharp crack.

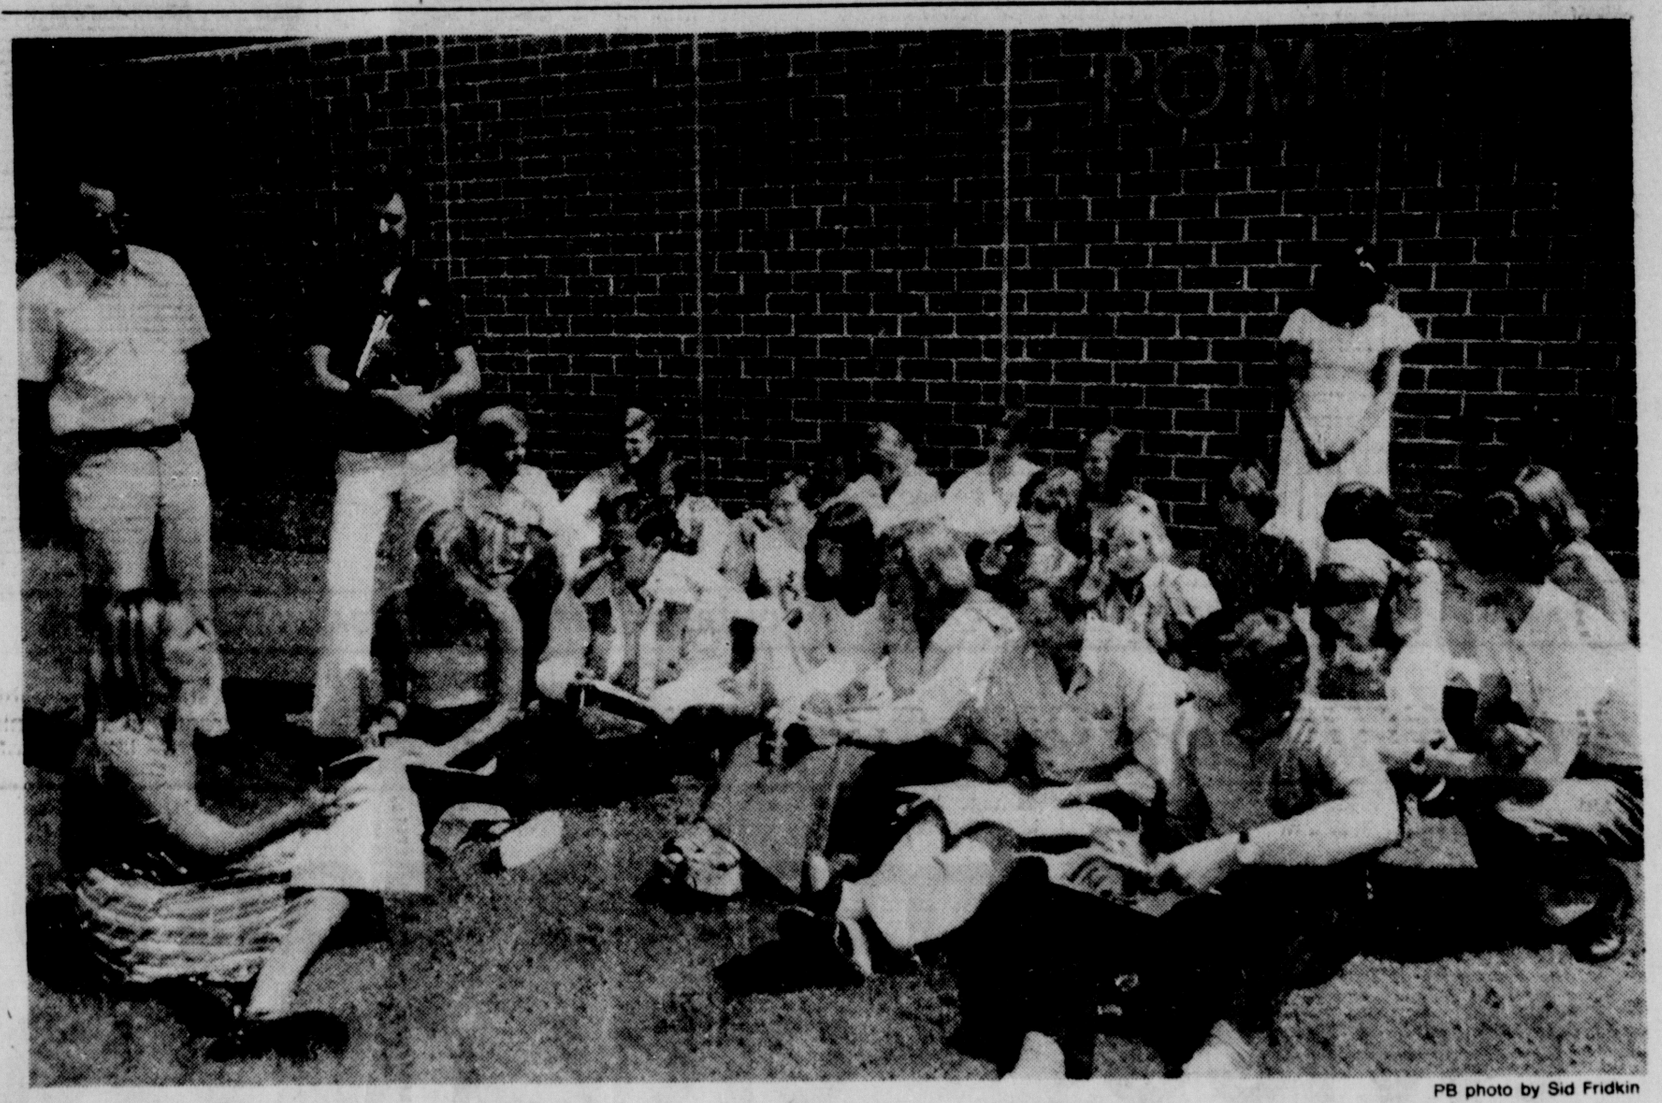

A sudden silence fell on the audience of several thousand and Wallace, crippled three years ago in Maryland by a would-be assassin, flinched momentarily on the speaker's stand.

"I'm a little gun-shy," he told the photographer, as he interrupted his speech. "You threw me off."

Shortly afterward, the photographer tried again and a loud retort was heard again — followed by some shouts from angry spectators for the man to leave.

"I hope you can get that fixed," Wallace said. And the photographer drifted away.

Wallace's talk was at the annual picnic in the Fancy Farm community near here. The event is an annual opener for Kentucky campaigns.

Man wounded also plans action

CBS files suit to open files on Robert Kennedy killing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS Television has filed suit to open the files on the Robert F. Kennedy assassination, and one of the persons wounded the night Kennedy was shot says he also plans a suit to force release of the records.

CBS Television filed the suit in Superior Court Friday to compel the police department to release its 10-volume record of the investigation into the June 1968 murder of Kennedy, killed during a party in the Ambassador Hotel celebrating his victory in the California Democratic presidential primary.

Paul Schrade, a former union official wounded in the shooting, said he would file his own suit next week for release of the records which might "show who killed Kennedy and nearly killed me.

"I was nearly killed that night and I have a legal as well as a moral right to this information," Schrade said.

The Los Angeles Police Commission decided Thursday not to release the records on grounds that doing so could invade the privacy of innocent persons connected with the case.

CBS said in its suit that California's Public Records Act of 1968 provides that "public records are open to inspection at all times during the office hours of the state or local agency and every citizen has a right to inspect any public record...."

The network said the summary was written as a history of the case, "not as an operative document in the investigative process" and that it "was intended for public dissemination by its police authors."

Schrade, who suffered a head wound in the shooting, said his suit would name the Police Commission, Police Chief Ed Davis and City Atty. Burt Pines. He said he will also ask to see all physical evidence collected in the investigation and the prosecution of Sirhan B. Sirhan, who was convicted of killing Kennedy.

Still no verdict in Gurney trial after sixth day

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The jury in the influence peddling trial of former Sen. Edward Gurney and three others recessed Saturday after failing for the sixth straight day to return a verdict.

U.S. District Judge Ben Krentzman gave the 12-member panel time to attend church this morning with deliberations scheduled to resume at 1:30 p.m. EDT today.

Won't play active role in California primary—Brown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. says he won't play an active role in next year's presidential primary in California — though he admits having an "interest" in the contestants and winner of the race.

"I've done my chores," Brown said, referring to his own political campaign last November, "Now I'm doing what I was elected to do—running this state."

Speaking to reporters at a breakfast meeting here Friday, Brown allowed that his interest in national politics could become more active at the end of his first year in office next January.

But at the present, the governor said, he is not interested in presidential politics, either as a candidate or as the leader of an unpledged delegation.

Northeast broils under 100-plus temperatures

Hundreds stranded in traffic

The Northeast boiled under a heat wave Saturday as temperatures shot above 100 in New England, normally one of the nation's cooler areas.

Temperatures above 100 were reported throughout the region, with Providence, R. I. registering 104 at 2 p.m. and Portland, Maine unofficially reporting 105 degrees at that time. Concord, N.H. recorded 101 degrees, breaking the 1917 record for the date of 96. Windsor Locks, Conn. also reported 101 degrees in the midafternoon.

Even Nantucket Island, normally a cool haven 30 miles at sea off Cape Cod, sweltered under a midafternoon temperature of 100 degrees.

The National Weather Service said temperatures in Boston reached 101 degrees at 3 p.m., eclipsing the old record for the date of 98 set in 1917.

Massachusetts State Police said thousands of cars jammed the roads to Cape Cod. "There's much heavier traffic than normal and hundreds of cars in the slow-moving lines have stopped from overheating," said a trooper.

Fire departments near the Cape and several service organizations carried water and medical aid to hundreds of stranded persons caught in the traffic, state police said.

The heat and humidity sent thousands of residents of the Washington-Baltimore area out of the cities with a 12-mile back up of traffic reported at the eastern end of the Cheaspeake Bay Bridge. In Baltimore the 4 p.m. high was 98 and in Washington 96.

The National Weather Service said a large stagnant high pressure system over the Northeast should maintain the same hot, humid conditions throughout the weekend and possibly through Wednesday.

Low water pressure was reported in Boston and New York.

A Boston Fire Department spokesman said water pressure was "dangerously low" in some parts of the city because people were opening fire hydrants to splash in the water. Joe Cassaza, city public works commissioner said water pressure was 50 per cent below normal.

"We estimate that there are 300 hydrants that are open at any one time in the city," he said. "This is like have 300 simultaneous water main breaks."

A citywide water alert was declared in New York as hundreds of fire hydrants were opened by residents seeking relief from the third successive day of temperatures in the upper 90s.

Water pressure dropped sharply not only limiting the supply for fighting fires but preventing many residents from drawing water from bathroom taps and preventing the flushing of toilets.

In Washington, D.C. a smog alert was issued for the fifth straight day on Saturday and the National Weather Service in North Carolina asked residents to curtail driving and outdoor cooking because of air pollution.

A Connecticut mosquito control official, Julius Elson, said there was some good news in the heat wave. He said many mosquitoes bred during the recent rainy spell most likely will die of heat prostration and dehydration by Monday. They just can't take the heat.

THEIR OWN 'JAWS'

Adults who shiver at thoughts of the movie "Jaws" contrast with these Chicago youngsters who seem to have little fear of losing their extremities to this sand version of the fearsome white shark which they constructed for a contest at Chicago's North Avenue Beach.

Oroville residents a little concerned about earthquakes

OROVILLE (AP) — "A jar of jam fell off the shelf about 8:45 a.m.," said Mike McIntosh, manager of Farmer's Food Stores. "A little later, quite a lot of merchandise fell off the shelves. That's the kind of morning we had."

It's been more than a morning.

Mayor Robert A. Winston, a real estate appraiser, said he's lived in Oroville for 25 years and can't remember a tremor until the one of last June 20, when something similar happened.

No enormous damage that time either. But at least 24 hours of aftershocks.

Since then, there have been a few isolated jiggles, hardly measurable. But noticeable.

Mayor Winston, after the main shock of 6.1 on the Richter scale at 1:20 p.m. Friday, said he can't explain what's happening. He said the experts are looking into it.

Nearby Oroville Dam, a chief element in the gigantic California Water Project to send water to the Los Angeles area, was completed about 1966.

The man in charge of the dam, Phil Johns, said it is a scientifically structured earthen mountain, densely compacted, that would resist earthquakes better than the natural mountains that surround it. He's not worried about it breaking.

"It would take an enormous hole under the dam itself...the kind of catastrophe that, if it happened, it would be only a small part of total devastation," said Johns, Oroville Division chief of the state Department of Water Resources.

As for the cause of the shocks, Dr. Clarence Allen, a seismologist at the California Institute of Technology, said there are at least four instances of water from big dams "lubricating" faults and causing earthquakes. He said these were in China, Greece, South Africa and Lake Mead, Nev.

But Allen said he doubted this was the case in Oroville, because the dam is too far away from the epicenter of the earthquake.

He said the weight of the water behind dams might have something to do with the tremors.

Allen added that seismologists don't know of any major faults in the Oroville area.

Survey finished on water system

A state sanitary engineering survey of the Pomona water system has been completed and found to be "excellently constructed and maintained."

The survey was completed by the California Department of Health, Water Sanitation Section in preparation of the city's revised domestic water permit, according to James Van Wagner, manager of the Pomona Water Department.

In a letter to Van Wagner, state officials stated "The principal finding of our investigation was the city of Pomona Water Department presently operates an excellently constructed and maintained water system which delivers a very satisfactory quality of water to consumers."

The report commends the water department's maintenance and management staff on the operation of the system.

A number of recommendations for the improvement of the system are included in the report, most of which are technical in nature.

One recommendation concerns the monitoring for pollution in the San Antonio Canyon watershed area. It states the city should increase its quality monitoring and surveillance.

The report indicates that the water delivered to Pomona residents meets all chemical, physical and bacteriological drinking water standards.

The survey report, along with a time schedule for implementation of the state recommendations will be officially received Monday night by the Pomona City Council.

Upland City Council to hear tract appeal

A public hearing is planned at the Monday meeting of the Upland City Council at 7 p.m. in the city hall to hear the appeal of Lewis Homes of California concerning the Planning Commission's disapproval of a tract map.

The involved tract of 32 homes is proposed on the north side of 14th Street between Euclid Avenue and San Antonio Avenue in an R-1-C (single family residential) zone.

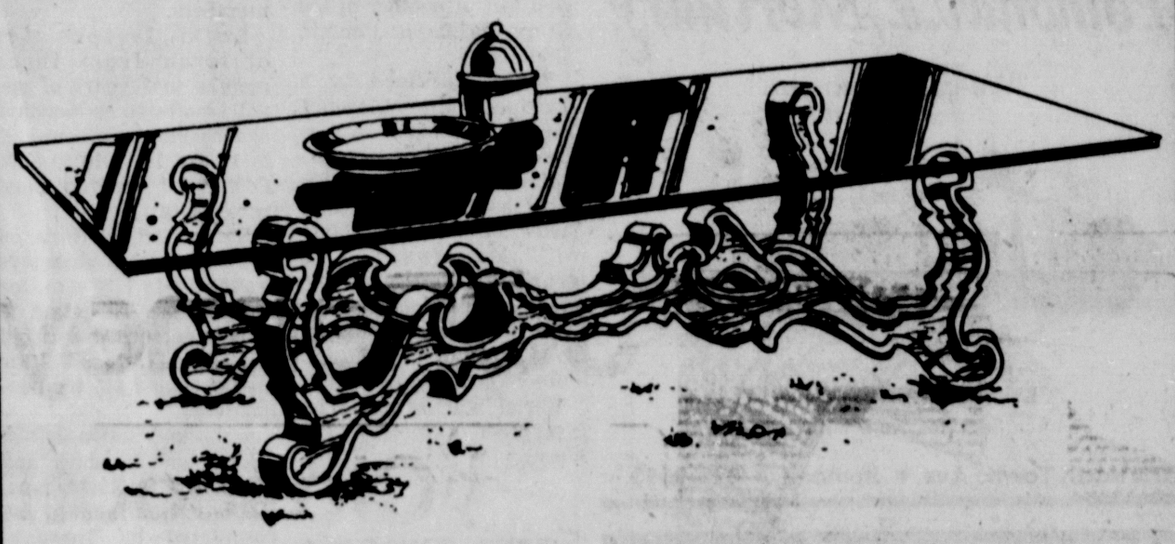

Three other zone change ordinances, all changing tracts to residential areas from agricultural zones, will be presented for first readings at the council meeting.

The council will also consider the awarding of a contract for the improvement of Mountain Avenue from the San Bernardino Freeway to 16th Street.

The council will consider a request from West End Drug Abuse Coordinating Council for assistance in obtaining local revenue sharing funds in order to continue receiving federal grant funds.

Proposed increase in refuse collection rates will also be discussed at the council meeting.

Hiroshima: men on the mission

The years have been good to the B-29 pilot

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

He's just Paul Tibbets now, or Mr. T. as his secretary calls him, the bespectacled vice president of a charter airline company in Columbus, Ohio.

Thirty years ago this Wednesday he was Col. Paul W. Tibbets Jr., the man who piloted the plane that loosed the terrible terror of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

Over 70,000 people were killed and countless others injured and maimed as "Little Boy" detonated over the Japanese city with a flash more blinding than that of the sun and an ensuing mushroom-shaped cloud that was to become the symbol of holocaust for later generations.

Overnight, the word Hiroshima was seared into history. It became a word like Auschwitz ... Dachau ... Dresden. Nobody ever had to explain.

Paul Tibbets: a perfectionist, a pilot's pilot, a man who almost became a doctor instead of a flier, a crack shot in competition, a teetotaler, a man who always took charge of his emotions. At first, he was a hero — the man who ended the war. Later — in some circles — he became a goat for his role in man's first use of nuclear weaponry against his fellow man. He was rumored to be insane, a drunkard, a cold-blooded product of the military. His travels had to be cleared by the military and it was not until 1964 that the Air Force finally told him he could say anything he wanted to say about the mission that put him into the history books.

Over the years, Tibbets, now 60, often has been quizzed about his role. People want to know if he felt remorse, if he had guilt feelings, how he differed from Adolf Eichmann?

Tibbets doesn't duck the questions any more than he ducked the 50 combat missions he flew before he was picked to organize and command the group that flew the first Abomb missions.

Sample: Is he proud of what he did that morning over Japan?

"I'm not proud that I killed 80,000 people, but I'm proud that I was able to start with nothing, plan it and have it work as perfectly as it did."

(Nobody really knows how many people were killed. It was wartime and there was not an accurate count. History book estimates range from 70,000 to 100,000 and one source reports 200,000.)

The years appear to have been good to that young colonel handpicked to usher in a nuclear age and change warfare.

Tibbets — 30 when he dropped the bomb — stayed in the Air Force, retiring in 1966 as a brigadier general. His wavy black hair, a little saltier these days, is full, his physique still trim. Except for the aviator glasses, he looks very much like the man whose name and picture were everywhere back in 1945.

As vice president of Executive Jet Aviation Inc., Tibbets still climbs into the cockpit occasionaly, piloting one of the company's 14 Lear jets and two Falcons.

Besides shooting, Tibbets enjoys playing with a ham radio at his home in Columbus, which he shares with his French-born second wife. His first marriage ended in divorce. One of his two sons by his first wife followed him into aviation and pilots the executives of Winn-Dixie wherever they have to go. The other son became a pharmacist.

Tibbets was in medical school at the University of Cincinnati when he became fascinated with flying.

"I had to conjure up all my nerve to tell my father. Although my father was not a doctor, there had always been a doctor in the family. He didn't explode like I thought he would. He just said I was a damn fool to go out and kill myself."

Mrs. Tibbets, however, had faith in her son. Right there and then she announced that Paul would do all right in flying. Her name — an Indian name — was Enola Gay, and it was painted onto the nose of the B-29 the night before it took off on its historic mission.

Tibbets enlisted in 1937 and soon became a top pilot, leading combat missions over Europe and North Africa and bringing home some pretty badly shot up planes. But he always got them home. He himself caught some flak on one mission and was awarded the Purple Heart.

In August of 1944, Tibbets and his copilot, Capt. Robert A. Lewis, were setting altitude records for the B-29 high over New Hiroshima men...

Mexico when Tibbets got a strange call. He was to go to Colorado Springs right away. No explanation.

"They just told me to bring all my clothes because I wouldn't be coming back."

Tibbets was given but one order: Develop an outfit with the capability to drop the A-bomb.

Tibbets inherited the 393rd Squadron as the nucleus around which to build the 509th Composite Group. He handpicked many of the men, including his bombardier, Maj. Thomas W. Ferebee, and his navigator, Capt. Theodore J. Van Kirk. He had flown with them in combat.

The 13 men in the crew have pretty much lost touch with each other. Tibbets still sees Ferebee occasionally and says he receives occasional letters from his former tail gunner, Sgt. George R. Caron, but the others have gone their separate ways. Some left the service right after the war, pursuing their careers. Others like Ferebee and Tibbets made the military their careers.

Tibbets says all the publicity hasn't really bothered him.

"I've been called just about everything ... cold-blooded, a drunkard, crazy ... you name it."

There was a rather widespread belief that the pilot of the Hiroshima plane cracked up over guilt feelings. The man who actually had the emotional problems was Maj. Claude Eatherly, the pilot of the Straight Flush, the weather plane that preceded the Enola Gay over Hiroshima to check for clouds. Eatherly later was in a mental institution, and also committed small crimes.

Despite the publicity — and the confusion — the Department of Defense never came out publicly and announced that Tibbets, the real Hiroshima pilot, was very sane indeed and working on sensitive assignments with the Strategic Air Command, NATO and at the Pentagon. That rankles Tibbets a bit.

"After all, I had given my all for them. I guess they just didn't want to get involved in a personal matter, but it would have helped my morale."

Stories also spread about Ferebee the bombardier, who now lives in Maitland, Fla., just outside of Orlando.

Neither Tibbets nor Ferebee nor Caron ever suffered guilt feelings.

Tibbets explains: "You've got to take stock and assess the situation at that time. We were at war. You only fight a war to win it — that is until we got into that mess over in Vietnam.

"You use anything at your disposal. There are no Marquess of Queensberry rules in war. I sleep clearly every night. I didn't get mad at the Japanese and decide to go do this to them.

"I was fighting for patriotism and what I believed was right. Plus I had some classmates who were beheaded by some

Experiential Taxonomy: drawing interest

Ontario-Montclair school administrators develop it

An educational project so innovative it has drawn inquiries from all over the United States and seven foreign countries has been developed by three administrators of the Ontario-Montclair School District.

Experiential Taxonomy, as it is called, has already been the subject of two articles in national educational magazines and will soon be the subject of a book.

Experiential Taxonomy is the brain child of Assistant Supt. of Instruction Bob Bell. It is based on the premise that children will learn more, and retain it better if they experience the concept or skill being taught. Students will retain math skills better, for example, if they have to use them in reality situations such as grocery shopping.

But the project goes beyond skill learning. Norm Steinaker, project specialist in charge of developing the experiential taxonomy, explains that "a taxonomy is simply a classification, in this case of educational objectives. In the past there have been three major domains recognized in education: The cognitive, concerning the ability to think; the affective, concerning attitudes, behavior and values; and psychomotor, concerning physical-mental coordination.

"The experiential is the fourth educational domain. It combines all three of the others and goes beyond by dealing with the child as a whole, a total being, in terms of experience. If students encounter the proper experiences, they develop their total selves — intellectually, behaviorally and physically. We are developing an underlying structure for ordering a sequence of classroom activities that will develop the whole child. The experiential actually differs from the other three domains in four major ways: It (1) uses experience to educate and develop; (2) offers a planned program for internalizing education (making it a continuing part of the child); (3) offers a plan for disseminating learning (students want to teach other students); and (4) it offers a comprehensive plan for dealing with the whole child.

Steinaker pointed out that "internalization is one of the most valuable aspects of our taxonomy. Every teacher wants the presented material to become a part of the child, to be used in life situations. Our structure gives the teacher a planned program for making learned skills and concepts a part of the child's total make up. Instead of learning material for tests and forgetting it, the child learns, uses what has been learned, and retains it. The experiential plan can be applied to any curriculum for any type of student at any level of development."

Bell is still actively involved in the development of the project and is constantly consulted on matters concerning its directions.

Steinaker liked Bell's idea and worked with him in writing the article that brought the project to world attention: "A Proposed Taxonomy of Educational Objectives: The Experiential Domain." The article was published in the January issue of Educational Technology, a nationally known educational journal. Another article, "A Model for Developing Experiences Through the Experiential Taxonomy," is scheduled to appear in the journal this fall.

The project gained official recognition in April of this year when it was selected as one of 20 projects to receive state funding. The money received from the state permitted the district to hire a research assistant, Marilyn Harrison, to prepare the project for use in special education classes this fall.

Experiential taxonomy seems on its way to being a very important force in education in the future. Bell, Steinaker and Harrison are preparing it for presentation to local colleges in the fall, and the possibility of a book on the system looms in the future.

The experiential project is rewarding for its proponents because, as Steinaker points out, "it could well prove to be an extremely important and successful approach to the education of children."

MUSCLE STRETCHING

Karen Kidwell, 10, of San Dimas, gets her daily workout on the gymnastic apparatus at La Verne College. She is part of a summer sports fitness program for children. The second half of the program starts Monday. Registration is still open.

Fitness program offered at LVC

The second session of the La Verne College youth summer sports fitness program will get under way at the Supertent Monday.

It offers activities to boys and girls, 8 to 12, from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday for the next four weeks under the supervision of Camie Pearns, assistant track coach of Glendora High School.

The activities include badminton, volleyball, gymnastics, jogging, weight training, bicycling, rope jumping as well as ping pong and pool.

Pearns said he is planning a bicycle trip to Puddingstone Lake and a day at the beach.

The cost of the four-week session is $20 per child. Those who are interested in more information may call the college, 593-3511, Ext. 251.

Beginning Aug. 15

LVC without president

La Verne College will probably operate without a president for most of the fall, starting Aug. 15.

On that date, L.B. Newcomer, the current president of the college, will move on to his new job as superintendent of the Grossmont School District in San Diego.

Newcomer said the search committee for his successor is far from having completed its work, and probably will not make a recommendation to the college's board of trustees until November.

Deadline for submitting application for consideration to the post is Aug. 18. Newcomer said 30 applications have been received so far and more are expected.

In the meantime, the college will run on an interim basis by W. Donald Clague, head of the graduate school, in his capacity as chairman of the deans' committee.

"He will not be an acting president," Newcomer explained "But if any problems come up that need a tie-breaker or a quick decision, he will be the final voice until the trustees make a formal choice."

The search committee, headed by Welty Lefever, was set up June 30, immediately after Newcomer announced his resignation. It is composed of 10 persons, and includes members of the faculty and the trustees, with Newcomer as adviser.

Also at work is a second committee of four persons to consider the salary to be paid.

The candidates will be narrowed to five finalists by Aug. 25, and each of them will be given extensive interviews by members of the committee in September and October.

The committee is expected to present its final choice at the semi-annual trustees meeting Nov. 8.

Newcomer said he did not think the college would run into great difficulties during the interim period.

"Every administrator has a job and knows what to do," he explained. "It will be similar to a presidential leave of absence.

Although he did not reveal whether Clague was one of the applicants for the post of president, Newcomer said there were a number of administrators within the college who have applied for the job.

Newcomer became president of La Verne College seven years ago, coming here from a post as superintendent of the Las Vegas school district. He is a graduate of the college.

Valley's retail sales increase

Retail sales in the valley's nine cities increased by 3.1 per cent during the first quarter of this year, based mainly on a strong quarter in Pomona.

Total taxable sales for first three months of the year were $184,914,000 for an increase of $6,705,000 over the same period in 1974.

Pomona, with taxable sales of $74,155,000 (compared to 1974's $69,320,000), accounted for 84.7 per cent of all the growth in the valley and 40.1 per cent of all sales. Sales in Pomona represented an increase of 6.9 per cent over the first quarter of 1974.

The percentage growth leader in the valley was Claremont, which picked up 12.2 per cent over last year on an increase of $844,000 from $6,844,000 to $7,728,000.

Three cities, Ontario, Montclair and San Dimas, suffered decreased sales during the quarter.

Ontario dropped $224,000 from $35,286,000 in 1974 to $35,062,000 this year, for a decrease of .6 per cent.

Montclair showed a decrease of $180,000 from $31,647,000 in 1974 to $31,467,000 this year, for a decrease of .5 per cent.

San Dimas dropped $328,000 from $4,480,000 last year to $4,152,000 in 1975, for a decrease of 7.3 per cent.

Other individual city sales were:

Chino — up $223,000 from $9,651,000 to $9,874,000, for an increase of 2.3 per cent.

Upland — up $301,000 from $17,081,000 to $17,382,000, an increase of 1.7 per cent.

La Verne — up $165,000 from $3,833,000 to $3,998,000, for an increase of 4.3 per cent.

Walnut — up $69,000 from $1,027,000 to $1,096,000, an increase of 6.7 per cent.

Statewide, sales were up 5.5 per cent on total sales of $16.1 billion.

The average gain in all of Southern California was 4.5 per cent.

The state Board of Equalization estimated that prices in the first quarter this year were up 12.3 per cent over 1974, indicating that actual sales volume was down in California by about 6 per cent.

The largest categorical gain during the quarter was in the area of petroleum and petroleum products, which were up by 117.6 per cent.

The top six sales tax producers by type of business remained the same as 1974. New car dealers again top the list, followed in order by: service stations, restaurants and bars, department stores, food stores, and specialty stores.

Per capita taxable sales in the state were up $33 or 4.2 per cent.

Housing corporation asks council for loan

The Greater Pomona Housing Development Corp., which will build a retirement housing complex on the old Emerson School property in Pomona, will ask the Pomona City Council Monday night for a $25,000 loan to expedite the project.

Morgan R. Sly, president of the corporation, said the loan would be repaid at nine per cent interest with revenues from the sale of bonds early next year.

City Attorney Patrick Sampson is expected to tell the council that the loan would be legal according to a recent Court of Appeals decision.

The council will also be asked for a $13,000 loan by the Pomona Bicentennial Committee for the publication of a book entitled "History of Pomona." The book, if the council approves the loan, will be published by the Day Printing Co. in Pomona.

Other agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include a recommendation from the Pomona Central Business District concerning the operation of the Pomona Mall minibus; plans and specifications for improvement of Barjud Park; and receipt of a state sanitary engineering survey of the city's water system.

A dedicated man leaves his mark

It took much intestinal fortitude and a great deal of faith in this community for Warren Arthur to leave a good-paying job in Grand Rapids, Mich., for the uncertainty of heading a new Boys Club in Pomona.

After all, he was 58 years old, an age when most men begin to think seriously of retirement.

But he liked the people who approached him and the challenge that such an opportunity offered. So starting from scratch, and fighting for every dollar he needed, he built the organization during the next seven years to where it now has a membership of 1,200

The $40,000 building he and his directors bought with barely a hope and a promise in 1968 for a clubhouse is now paid for and valued at $250,000.

Though the club now appears well established, there is still much need for dollars. But someone else will have to find them. Warren Arthur retired last Thursday as executive director of the club.

What he accomplished during those productive years will leave an indelible mark on the community. He will be sorely missed not only by the Boys Club but also by the wide range of acquaintances and friends he has made throughout the valley

Detente paying off

The eminently successful meeting of Apollo and Soyuz in space was the most spectacular fruit of the current era of detente. It will be a long time before U.S.-Soviet scientific co-operation again produces anything as dramatic and imagination-capturing.

Yet Apollo-Soyuz represents only one of a baker's dozen of scientific and technological programs, involving some 140 different projects, which the two countries are actively engaged in.

The other 12 programs, most of which have grown out of the 1972 meeting between former President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, run the gamut from cancer research to earthquake detection, from atomic energy to transportation. Discoveries in any one of these fields could prove more meaningful to earth-bound humanity than any number of handshakes in space.

For example, a Soviet drug called florafur is being used in the treatment of cancer of the gastrointestinal tract in a hospital in Houston. In all, American and Russian medical researchers have exchanged about 120 anticancer drugs, as well as other drugs and methods for treating heart disease and arthritis.

Soviet earthquake science, said to be a decade ahead of our own, has helped U.S. geologists to forecast small earthquakes in California and New York.

In transportation, the Soviets have supplied U.S. railroads with samples of the reinforced concrete ties widely used in the U.S.S.R. instead of wooden ones. In return, the Soviets are testing the adoption of a U.S. radio microwave system for assisting aircraft landings.

Other joint endeavors include the study of ocean currents, the transmission of high-voltage electricity through supercooled cables and the exchange of air-pollution control equipment and monitoring instruments.

Detente, like true love, has not always run smooth, unfortunately.

On the one hand, Russian scientific findings, often unavailable in the West before, are now readily obtained by visiting researchers. On the other hand, "it is often much easier, politically and administratively, to arrange for Soviet and American astronauts to meet in space than it is for an American scientist from Ann Arbor or New York to invite a Soviet colleague in Moscow or Leningrad to come to work in his laboratory," says Columbia University historian Loren R. Graham.

Unlike exchanges between American scientists and their counterparts in most other countries, which proceed from the scientists themselves, U.S.-Soviet projects were originally politically inspired, without any input from the scientists, and politics and bureaucracy continue to throw up obstacles.

Americans complain about the slow, red-tape-snarled decision-making of Soviet authorities, much of which stems from the fact that the U.S.S.R.'s highly centralized system leaves little discretionary power to lower-level officials. Negotiations which should be a matter of days drag on for months.

In at least one instance, however, a project had to be dropped because the Americans were unable to squeeze the necessary funds out of the Ford administration. This was to be the joint development of a futuristic train that would run suspended above the ground in a magnetic field.

Both sides, moreover, still suffer from the old cold war mentality and fear giving away technological secrets to the other. At base, both sides remain potential adversaries.

Nevertheless, compared with the situation that existed only a few years ago, the ongoing scientific co-operation between the United States and the Soviet Union has to be rated as one of the most significant developments since the end of World War II.

'Pres. Jerry': Part of the people

WASHINGTON — At the end of one year in the presidential pressure cooker, Gerald R. Ford is relatively at ease with his new burdens while a tenuous but growing majority of Americans seems equally comfortable with him.

He has not displayed the personal equipment usually associated with the modern presidency. He is not bold, innovative, dynamic or eloquent. Neither is he manipulative, secretive nor is he given to duplicity. A visitor to the oval office does not leave awed with his global prescience or breathless over his grand design for the future.

But an hour with him is nonetheless reassuring. He has a natural, easy-going informality. He spoke almost nostalgically about his past habit of cooking his own breakfast, as if he regretted that he is now too busy to dabble in the kitchen. Nor has he become, as he put it, "enamored with the prestige of the White House or the power of the White House."

Outside, among the tourists, I found a genuine esteem for President Jerry. I understood this better as he talked. "A President has to have the backing, faith and trust of the American people," he told me earnestly. "I don't think a President can get that by adopting an attitude that maybe he is better than they. As a matter of fact, my feeling is that a President ought to be a part of the American people. In that way, they feel a part of him."

In political affairs, timing is all important and the time is right for Gerald Ford. His unpretentiousness fits the mood of a country grown wary of world-savers. His calm soothes a people recoiling from years of clamor and turbulence. His caution falls like a balm on a citizenry suffering third-degree burns from foreign and domestic misadventures.

Even his pedestrian speeches, delivered in the flattest of monotones, is agreeable to ears too long worked over by rhetorical sharpies. Tacked on a White House wall, I saw a cartoon commemorating Ford's inglorious pratfall in Salzburg, when his football knee gave way. We again have a President whose inner security permits him to laugh at himself.

The importance of Gerald Ford's personal makeup at this particular time is not to be underrated. Rarely have the decency, openness and genuineness of one man been so instrumental in restoring to the conduct of national affairs that sense of serenity and trust without which a democracy cannot long function.

But the therapeutic qualities of the Ford character, while antidotes to the poisons of the recent past, are not cures for the ills of the present. If he is to succeed, he must be more than, as one ex-aide has called him, "a Boy Scout in the White House."

Two capacities above all are necessary: the intellectual vision to read correctly the native dilemmas of our time, and the courageous integrity to endure temporary unpopularity on the gamble of coming out right in the end.

I am not as satisfied with Ford's vision as with his integrity. I feel he is overinfluenced by Big Business and its self-serving economic doctrines.

But if the Democratic alternative to Ford's fiscal austerity continues to be a disorganized profligacy piled on top of insolvency, if the opposing energy program is to be composed only of tireless rhetoric, with the hard choices put off until after the next election or two, my appreciation of Gerald Ford will continue to increase.

As for courage and integrity, the signs are that he has them. He has dated to stick his neck out. His decision to pardon Richard Nixon, for example, plunged his infant Administration into a trough of unpopularity and sealed the doom of Republicans in the 1974 elections. But Ford perceived a Nixon on the brink of collapse, foresaw that the dragging of a sick ex-President from courtroom to courtroom would inflame public acrimony and prevent indefinitely the draining of the venom from our national life.

Right or wrong — and I thought it was wrong to pardon Nixon before his crimes were set forth — Gerald Ford rose to his first great decision as a humane man and as a statesman. And despite the political uproar that followed, he said if he had it to do all over again, he would grant the pardon.

In his selection of inflation rather than unemployment as our chief economic threat, with the consequent vetoes of benefits sought by large voting blocs and in his program to attack the energy problems in the most unpopular way imaginable — by forcing up oil prices today in order to force down consumption and stimulate production tomorrow — he has again taken the path of immediate political peril in the hope of proving right in the long run.

I have grave doubts about the rightness of his policies, but he hasn't ducked the tough decisions. "All my life I have been a problem-solver," he told me, "and in the job of President you have more wonderful opportunities to look at problems, see options and use your best judgment in what ought to be done."

Looking back over his first year in the White House, he reflected: "I don't think I have changed. I like people. I like to work. I like to feel that something is being accomplished . . . I find the challenges are tremendous."

Growing day by day into presidential stature, Gerald Ford has begun to raise the banner of the national interest as he perceives it and to hold it aloft above the thousand special interest groups that clamor for his attention.

Little wonder his congressional opponents, their large majority rent by cautionary shouts from back home, have fallen into disarray. A man with convictions is the master of those who doubt.

PRISON SMUGGLING: Most Watergate convicts have wound up at the Allenwood, Pa., federal prison camp, a model, farm-like facility where white-collar prisoners usually are sent to do their time.

But trustworthy inside sources tell us that an efficient smuggling system operates under the noses of the prison authorities. This underground network supplies prisoners — for the right price — with the favorite brands of whiskey and drugs to relieve the prison monotony.

The contraband is sneaked into Allenwood, according to our sources, by employes who use garbage cans and automobile trunks as hiding places. They turn the smuggled wares over to an inmate-distributor, who trafficks it to other prisoners. The distributor then splits his profits with the smugglers.

Drugs also have been hidden in tennis balls. A patch is cut from the ball, the drug is inserted, the patch is glued back and then the ball is bounced into play by a visitor during family get-togethers.

"What makes you think I'm running?"

Just in jest

By latest official count, there are now 3,454 man made objects orbiting in outer space. And, according to some of our space scientists, by the year 2,000 that number will have increased to literally millions. For, say those scientists, by that time we will have perfected and launched orbiting mobile homes clustered in outer space colonies. — And thank goodness for that! For then there will be another convenient place to send the tired, the poor, the huddled masses, the homeless, the tempest tossed, the wretched refuse of this teeming world yearning to breathe free. — Why not start it all off by putting a Statue of Liberty in orbit now so that it will be there to greet them when they arrive?

Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions. It costs you nothing. Write to Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415.

Heartline: I know that widows may receive Social Security benefits. How old must she be to receive monthly checks? Mrs. R.C.

Answer: A widow may receive benefits at any age if she has children under age 18, or if they are age 18 or over if they are under a disability which began before age 22. The child, or children, must be in her care and also receiving Social Security benefits. A widow without such children in her care may receive benefits at age 50 or later if she is disabled and at age 60 or later if she is not disabled.

Heartline: I receive supplemental security income and I am thinking of moving in with my son. Will this make any difference in my monthly payments? M.O.

Answer: Yes, it may make a difference since supplemental security income payments are reduced for a person living in someone else's household and receiving support and maintainance from them. Any move you make from your current address should be reported since it may affect your payments.

Heartline: Can I receive supplemental security income if I have a little money in the bank? C.I.

Answer: You can receive supplemental security income if your resources are not over $1,500 for an individual or $2,250 for a couple. Resources include money in the bank, cash, bonds, and other things of value to you.

Heartline: My estimated earnings for this year are quite a bit above the allowable $2,250 under Railroad Retirement. How do I go about reporting this to the Board? L.C.F.

Answer: Beneficiaries whose retirement or survivors benefits are subject to restriction because of excess earnings should report their expected earnings for the year to the nearest Board field office as soon as they know their earnings will be more than the prescribed limit. The Board can then make immediate adjustments in benefit payments, thus relieving the beneficiary of repaying a large over-payment at the end of the year.

Heartline: Will Medicare pay for my transportation to the doctor's office by bus? Mrs. K.

Answer: No.

Heartline: Is it true that there has just recently been a law passed that would allow Medicare to pay for prescription drugs? Mr. D. W.

Answer: No, not to our knowledge.

Heartline: How old do you have to be to get help from Heartline? A.K.

Answer: Our services are only for people 50 years of age or older.

Dr. Miller

Lightning not necessarily fatal

DEAR DR. MILLER: An acquaintance showed me her horse with a scar on it that had been caused by lightning. I'm skeptical. Is it possible for a horse to be struck by lightning and not die? —C.McA.

DEAR C. McA: Yes, horses (and cattle) may be dazed or even knocked unconscious by lightning and still recover completely. Other, longer-lasting aftereffects may be impaired vision or disturbed nerve function for from one to three months. Visible signs of lightning may range from singed hair to deep, slow-to-heal burns with eventual heavy scarring.

DEAR DR. MILLER: In this first aid book I'm reading on dogs, it says if a dog is poisoned to make it vomit by putting salt on the back of the tongue. That wouldn't be good for my dog, though. She's on a low salt diet. What could I use? For my dog, I mean, to cause her to vomit. — P.D.

DEAR P.D.: Hydrogen peroxide (medicinal, NOT bleaching) given at about a tablespoon per 15 pounds of body weight, is a more effective method of inducing vomiting in any dog. The proper procedure in a case where it is know the dog has just swallowed poison is first to call your veterinarian and ask him if peroxide is indicated for the type of poison the animal has ingested. If he approves, give the peroxide. If the dog does not "unload" immediately, take it on in anyway. Don't sit around waiting, for the longer the dog is away from professional help, the worse its chances of survival. (With some dogs, the car ride would help the peroxide in stimulating stomach emptying.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: My cat eats nothing but canned cat food, and still he's too fat. His doctor said to put him on a diet and ration the amount of food he gets a day. The trouble with that idea is, Cat won't cut down, even when I try to be firm. Is there any easy way to diet him? —M.F.

DEAR M.F.: There isn't any easy way to diet any animal, at least not one you're attached to and in tune with. Even so, the end — in this case presumably a smaller one — justifies the means. Where your cat's concerned, the only answer apparently is for you to steal his can opener and use yours — on cat food sparingly.

Ann Landers

MYOB remains the best advice

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sick and tired of your advice to mothers to MYOB when the future of their children may be at stake.

I am referring to your latest advice to Mrs. Z., who asked if she should warn her son about the bad temper of "Madame Svengali."

If you saw your daughter in the path of an oncoming car, wouldn't you do everything in your power to save her? Would you let her learn "first-hand" what it's like to be hit by a truck because she wasn't wise enough to look where she was going?

Several years ago, I followed your advice and said nothing when my daughter married the wrong guy. Now — several years and three children later —they are getting a divorce. I could have saved that girl untold agony if I hand't listened to you. — No Fan Of Yours

Dear No Fan: Sorry, but the advice is still MYOB. You could have stood on your head and sung the Star-Spangled Banner and your daughrer STILL would have married "the wrong guy." So stop beating yourself, Mother. The mistake was HERS, not YOURS.

It would be lovely if parents could funnel into the heads of their children the wisdom gained through years of experience. But they can't. All parents can do is provide them with emotional support and a loving environment. They can't, nor should they try to direct their children's lives. Sometimes children must stumble and fall — and even break a few bones — before they can walk independently and be responsible for themselves.

Dear Ann Landers: Please help me or I will lose my job. I work with fiberglass and I'm allergic to it. Although I am only 35 years old, my hands and face look like I'm 80.

When I come home at night I use a lot of vinegar and water to relieve the itching. It helps for a while, but then I get small blisters on my skin and the itching drives me out of my mind. Can you suggest some medicine that might help? — In Misery.

Dear Ms.: If you are lucky you WILL lose your job, because you apparently don't have sense enough to quit. No job is worth what you're going through. For heaven's sake, girl, get yourself out of that plant as soon as possible.

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago I was going steady with George. He ran into a little emergency (car payment) and needed $200 in a hurry. I lent him the money and he was very grateful. We had an understanding that he would pay me back as soon as he could. Three months later we broke up. Although George still calls me from time to time, he never mentions the $200. Now I'm in a financial bind and could use the money. How should I ask him for it? Frankly, I'm embarrassed. — Trapped Out

Dear Trapped: Ask him promptly, bluntly and at frequent intervals — until he pays up. Tell him if he can't manage the entire amount now you'll take $50 a week until the debt is repaid.

Why be embarrassed? You aren't asking for a gift. You are simply reminding him of his moral obligation.

CONFIDENTIAL to Mine Or His? Laws vary from state to state. In some areas "misrepresentation" is grounds for annulment. Let this be a lesson to you. Next time don't go husband-hunting with a geiger-counter.

No way to balance the scales

I have dieted continuously for the last two decades and lost a total of 758 pounds. By all calculations, I should be hanging from a charm bracelet.

I have done a lot of kidding around with Weight Watcher, but it is the only organization in which I ever lost a great deal of weight. But I fought them.

Every Tuesday morning, a group of us had to "weigh in" before the lecture. Our ritiual was enough to boggle the imagination. We got together a check-list of precautions before we actually stepped on the scale.

Bathroom? Check. Water pill? Check. Have you removed underwear, wedding rings, nail polish? Check. Set aside shoes, corn pads and earrings? Check. Are you wearing a summer dress beneath your winter coat? Check.

The first week I stepped on the scale and my instructor said, "You have gained." (Next week, I cut my hair.)

The next week, she said, "You have lost eight ounces, but that is not enough." (I had the fillings in my teeth removed.) The third week, I had dropped a pound, but my instructor was still not pleased. (I had my tonsils taken out.)

Finally, she really chewed me out. She accused me of not sticking to the diet and not taking it seriously. That hurt.

"I didn't want to tell you," I said, "but I think I am pregnant."

"How far?" she said coldly, clicking her ballpoint pen to make a notation on my card.

"Possibly three days," I said.

She glowered. "Any other excuses?"

"Would you believe I have a cold and my head is swollen?"

"No."

"How about I was celebrating the Buzzard's Return To Hinkley, Ohio, and had butter on my popcorn?"

She tapped her pen impatiently on the card and stared at me silently.

"Lint in the navel?" I offered feebly.

"How about first one at the trough?" she asked dryly.

I learned quickly never to argue with a woman who had the scales on her side.

I saw my old instructor the other day and she eyed me carefully and said, "When are you returning to class?"

"As soon as I have my appendix removed," I said returning her gaze.

I'm not sure, but I think I heard her moan.

Dr. Lamb

Varied treatment of heart

DEAR DR. LAMB — Almost a year ago a member of my family had a heart attack, a left branch block. Does this ever disappear through resting and very light chores? I have been told diet isn't important, but I give her very little salt and a low cholesterol diet. Am I wise in doing so?

DEAR READER — Left bundle branch block means the special nerve-like tissue that carries the stimulus to the left side of the heart muscle is not conducting, usually because of damage. This slows the left side of the heart's contraction by about .04 seconds, hardly enough to make any difference in the beating mechanism of the heart.

Its importance rests entirely with what caused it. I have seen many causes of left bundle branch block in rather healthy young men. Some of these, no doubt, were caused by inflammation of the heart with diseases during childhood. In these instances where the heart had no other important damage, the finding was only a scientific curiosity.

In a few cases the block will disappear when the heart slows and appear when the rate is increased. This alone doesn't tell you much about how important it is.

In most cases the finding means coronary artery disease, and this is certainly true if it occurs as a complication of a heart attack. In all of these instances the general management of the patient should be the same as that for other patients with fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. That means control of blood pressure, elimination of obesity, and a low fat, low in saturated fat, low cholesterol diet. The treatment is for the artery disease that caused the block, not for the block alone.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What happens when jogging right after eating? I do this quite often because I can't find time for jogging except after dinner. I'll stop if there is much danger, so please advise me.

DEAR READER — In healthy people jogging at a sensible speed after a moderate meal poses no hazard at all. For people with heart disease, which may include a large number of middle-aged people who do not know they have underlying heart disease, it is better not to load the heart with the work of digestion and exertion at the same time.

Except for young, healthy people, I think it is better to jog before meals. Remember, sensible jogging means jogging at a speed slow enough that you can still talk while jogging without being breathless. If you are breathless you are overdoing it and need to jog at a slower speed or just walk.

About this-that

A gold mine near Johnsville, Calif., may have been the home of America's first ski lift. In the 1860s, skiers slid down the mountain slope there on Sundays, riding up again aboard the mine's chain line ore buckets.

About 70 per cent of the people in the United States live in 2 per cent of the total land area of the country.

Wasps, bees, hornets and other winged insects cause more fatalities in the United States than any other of nature's creatures, including rattlesnakes.

American Indians taught early colonists how to make syrup and today it still is produced only in the United States or Canada. From 40 to 50 gallons of tree sap are boiled down to get one gallon of the rich syrup.

Opening lead — Q ♠

South Analyzed the lead. It was obviously the top of a suit headed by the queen-jack. He Reviewed the bidding. West had opened one of those pesky weak two-bids that are made on a six-card suit and a total of 7 to 10 or 11 high-card points. The queen-jack of spades accounted for 3 points; add one ace and West would hold 7. He might conceivably hold both aces, but that wasn't likely. With 11 high-card points and a good six-card suit he would have opened one spade only.

South Counted his winners and saw that he had a potential of 10. All he had to do was to knock out the right ace first. So South grabbed the first trick, decided that he might as well try clubs first, led out his king of clubs and wound up making four notrump.

"Pretty good guess, wasn't it?" he asked North.

"A fine, but unnecessary one," was the reply.

North pointed out that if South ducked the first spade he could knock out either ace and make his contract. No guess would be needed.

Also, if West abandoned spades, and led a heart South could duck one heart and be safe if hearts broke 5-2.

Ask the Jacobys

A New Mexico reader wants to know what the Vienna coupe is.

The answer is that it is a form of squeeze in which declarer sets up a card in a defender's hand as a prelude to squeezing him. It was supposedly first played in a whist game in Vienna around 1850. We will show one in Monday's article.

Gold covers windshields

Do you know what's used to coat the windshields of airliners? Gold. It becomes transparent when rolled exceedingly thin. An ounce of it can cover 80 windows. It's a superb conductor of electricity. Current run through it heats to defrost.

LONG LEGGED HENS

Chicken breeders know that a long-legged hen can cost them money. Most particularly, if she stands up on her little tippytoes everytime she lays an egg. A seven-inch drop can crack said egg. And cracked eggs, you know, sell less well. Some of those chicken breeders, therefor, monitor their hens closely to pick out the long-legged ballet dancers among them. And they turn them into drumsticks, appropriately.

Q. "HOW COME people are so superstitious about the old $2 bill?"

A. Two theories: First such bills carried the picture of Alexander Hamilton, the unfortunate fellow who lost his duel with Aaron Burr. Also, a lot of people who had those bills 95 years ago were thought to have sold their votes to the Republicans for same in that election year.

AMPERSAND

That little symbol for "and" that looks like this "&" is called an "ampersand." Means the same thing in several hundred languages. And it's the oldest word symbol known. Marcus Tiro of Rome in 63 B.C. used it among his 5,000 shorthand signs. Believe I mentioned his was the first shorthand system. None of his other word signs survived, oddly.

WHAT PROFESSIONS prosper in recession? That's what I asked. Writes a lifelong hotel man: "As I recall, the two salesmen who never complained during a recession were the man who sold welding rod and the oatmeal man." Indeed. Others whose businesses pick up as the recession worsens include shoe repairmen, auto mechanics, thrift shop owners and purveyors of day-old bakery goods.

Concejo pide investigacion de informe confidencial

El Concejo Municipal de Pomona ha pedido al Jefe de la Polica, Sr. F. P. Wallick, que investigue la unautorizada entraga de un informe confidencial policiaco al ex-concejal de la ciudad Sr. Clay Bryant.

La accion ha sido promovida por el concejal Sr. Benjamin Ochoa, quien senalo que habia una "aparente colusion en la copia de un documento confidencial y proveer el mismo a un ciudadano de nuestra ciudad". "Este es un informe confidencial de la policia sobre un supuesto crimen. La confidencialidad de este informe debe ser mantenido para la protencion de uno y de todos los ciudadanos que hayan sido investigados por nuestra policia. Mucha gente inocente ha sido objeto de tales investigaciones", dijo el Sr. Ochoa.

El documento en cuestion fue un infrme policiaco que Bryan senala como "evidencia" de accion criminal de parte de un miembro del personal bajo las ordenes del Administrador Municipal Sr. Jerrold Gonce. Bryant hizo el cargo en una reciente reunion del Concejo Municipal, durante un discurso dirigido a los concejales con motivo de las negociaciones de salario con la policia.

Mientras Bryant fue concejal, fue un fuerte sostenedor de aumentar los beneficios de la policia y se mantiene en muy buenas relaciones de amistad con su personal. Durante su apelacion a favor del aumento de sueldo a los oficiales, Bryant ataco la actuacion de Gonce como Administrador municipal y acuso a Gonce de "albergar" a un criminal en su departamento.

Bryant sostuvo tener evidencias que soportaban su acusacion y despues entrego una copia del reporte policiaco al Concejo.

Se supone que el informe concierne a un empleado a las ordenes de Gonce, pero no arrestos ni cargos han sido hechos oficialmente y que la oficina del abogado del distrito descarto acusar al individuo en cuestion.

Ochoa juzgo los cargos de Bryant como difamatorios y senalo que "ataques de caracter personal no deberian ser tolerados en nuestra Camara Municipal".

El Concejo voto 4-1 la orden a Wallick para que investigue el asunto. El concejal Sr. Adrian Wright emitio el unico voto negativo. Se supo despues que Wallick empezo enmediatamente la investigacion.

En un memorandum a todo el personal del departamento, Wallick senala que la circulacion del informe ha sido en violacion de las regulaciones del departamento y de la ley estatal, y pide que cada miembro del departamento que firme una declaracion eximiendose o haciendose responsable del hecho.

Bryant acuso al Concejo Municipal y a Gonce que habian incumplido su palabra tratando de hallar como el habia obtenido el informe policiaco referente a un miembro del personal a las ordenes directas de Gonce.

Bryant dijo que antes de dar el informe al Concejo y una copia a Gonce la semana pasada, se acordo que no habria represalias contra la persona o personas que habian facilitado el documento.

El concejal Sr. Adrian Wright, que voto contra la decision del Concejo de abrir una investigacion, concurrio con Bryant que hubo un general entendido de que no se atentaria identificar las fuentes del informe.

The men who bombed Hiroshima . . .

Japanese practicing their swordsmanship."

Tibbets is — and always has been — a believer of logic over emotion. He recalls his first combat mission, when he dropped conventional bombs.

"I looked down and saw the white puffs on the ground. I realized, 'Hey — someone's getting killed down there. I wonder who and why.' Then I told myself that was not for me to think about."

Ferebee and Caron agree.

"It was a job and would help win the war," says Caron. "I don't recall thinking much about it at the time except thinking 'My God, one airplane and one bomb can wipe out a city, we got this war licked,'"

Ferebee adds: "I'm not proud of killing all those people, but I'm proud of saving all the lives we did."

Ferebee is 56 now, heavier and balding, but he still has an athletic build. He played all sports as a young man and was playing on a Detroit Tigers farm club team when he enlisted. He retired from the military in 1970 as a colonel and lives in a beautiful home he bought for $45,000 four years ago. His neighbors don't know who he is and there's a good chance Ferebee will never tell them.

His moustache is gone now, but a picture of one of his four sons — with a moustache — looks very much like the 26-year-old bombardier 30 years ago.

Tibbets remembers Tom Ferebee as the coolest man he ever met under enemy fire. And well he was. Ferebee flew a total of 63 combat missions before he decided he might be pushing his luck just a bit.

Both men recalled that their parents were proud after the mission. Only Ferebee's grandmother felt differently.

"All she said was I hope the Lord will forgive you," he remembers.

Tibbets says most people he meets in business today don't know who he is despite the publicity. He says his name was dredged up during the Eichmann trial in 1961 and some said he should be tried like Eichmann. Even that didn't bother him. He explained that what Eichmann was doing was an illegal act. What he, Tibbets, did was a legal act of war.

President Truman invited Tibbets to the White House after the successful bombing.

Valley achievers

Women feted

Cited for their years of volunteerism in Pomona Valley, four 1975 Woman Achievers were honored last week at a luncheon hosted by the Progress Bulletin at Orlando's Restaurant.

They were recognized for their service and dedication to the betterment of mankind and were presented engraved silver Revere bowls to commemorate the event.

The four women, Mrs. Carole Anderson, Mrs. Georgia Grove, Mrs. Jil Stark and Mrs. Maxine Terrell, were paid tribute by Joseph A. Gendron, editor of the newspaper, and presented bowls by Mayor Ray Lepire of Pomona.

A surprise element was injected into the activities with the presentation of a Progress Bulletin Woman Achiever special award to Mrs. May Bowen, 82, of Pomona.

In announcing her selection, Mr. Gendron reviewed some of Mrs. Bowen's activities during the years in which she and her late husband, Will, raised their family in Pomona.

A resident of the valley for approximately 60 years, Mrs. Bowen was cited as Pomona's First Lady by the Pomona City Council a few years ago with the passing of a resolution honoring her in that fashion.

She served as president of two PTA units, president of the Pomona PTA Council and was a member of the board of trustees of Pomona Public Library. She has been active in the League of Women Voters and has worked arduously for the Republican Women, serving as president at one time. She has been a member of the board of trustees of Pomona First Baptist Church and in the past served as president of the Women's Mission Society, on the board of Christian education, member of the board of the Southern California Baptist Convention and is presently on the board of Claremont Manor.

"May has been identified with many of the constructive, positive projects that have been realized in Pomona for more than half a century," Mr. Gendron explained.

The special award was the second presented in the 10 years that the Woman Achiever contest has been conducted by the Progress Bulletin.

Several years ago, the first special award went to Mrs. Marie Mills, founding faculty member and first woman president of Mt. San Antonio College.

Wedding planned

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Sanders of Glendora announced the engagement of their daughter, Terry Lyn, to Skip Barry of Glendora.

The bride-elect attends Mt. San Antonio College and is employed in Pomona.

The bridegroon-elect is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Barry of Glendora and presently attends Citrus College.

Their wedding will be solemnized Sept. 6 in the courtyard at Griswold's Inn in Claremont.

BPW completes research

Fit work to workers

Fitting work to the workers instead of workers to the work has long been a topic for discussion and debate. The results of a recent research project on flexibile hours of work, undertaken by the Business and Professional Women's Foundation, may help clear up many questions and provide some answers.

The Foundation has published its findings in a book entitled "Hours of Work When Workers Can Choose." Included are charts and tables on typical patterns, reasons for trying, advantages found, problems and solutions, and ratings on specific factors, such as productivity, absenteeism, tardiness, and turnover. There is also an extensive bibliography covering all systems of rearranged workweeks.

The study includes 59 organizations of wide variety in both the public and private business sector, which are using either of two major flexible hours of work systems. Data was collected on the type of organization, unit responding, number of employees, proportion of employees on the system, unionization, other systems used, cost considerations, and status and duration of usage.

Nineteen of the organizations were using "employee-chosen staggered hours" — where employees work the same hours every day but may choose their schedule from among those offered by management. Forty were using "flexitime" — where employees may vary their schedule from day to day, as long as the required number of hours is worked within the given period.

The experience of the organizations studied turns out to be favorable, overall, and the use of flexible hours of work appears to be rising. Societal considerations are an important factor. Discussed are women in the work force, the needs of the family, affirmative action, younger and older workers, energy conservation, and the state of the economy.

"We try to anticipate the trends in employment," states Marie B. Bowden, President of the Foundation's Board of Trustees. "Our concern is the working woman, and flexibility in hours of work can be of great help, particularly for those with family responsibilities. This kind of study encourages employers to look at alternative patterns."

"Hour of Work When Workers Can Choose" is available for $2 per copy from the Business and Professional Women's Foundation, 2012 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

On target

Most flies bite more readily if you are sitting still. The deerfly, however, prefers a moving target, say the experts at the Johnson Wax Biology Center, Racine, Wis. The deerfly also likes to stay close to the ground, which means spraying socks and trouser cuffs with an insect repellent such as Deep Woods Off!

Tough exercising helps kicks drugs

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — They talk, they contemplate and then they rappel from a sheer cliff as high as an 80-story building.

"We have exactly six weeks to work these people," says Gunnery Sgt. Ernest Hilbert.

The sergeant and his 13 colleagues bark at, encourage and cajole young drug users at the 1st Marine Division's Challenge and Development Center here.

"These are the experimenters, not the physically or psychologically addicted," says Maj. Joseph Prochaska, commanding officer of the center.

Unlike other military drug programs that rely almost entirely on counseling, the center here, Prochaska says, provides a combination of physical challenges, introspection, counseling — and fun.

The month and a half of sessions is patterned after the civilian Outward Bound programs which train urbanites to survive in the wilderness.

Prochaska said this giant, San Diego-area base is the only one in the Marine Corps offering the program, although he said plans are under way for similar training on Okinawa.

Besides cliff rappeling, rope bridge crossing and exercise, the 450 Marines who have volunteered or been assigned to the program during the past two years are exposed to activities like scuba diving and sport parachuting.

They are also taken by the program staff and off-duty military vounteers to local attractions such as Disneyland, Sea World and the zoo.

"We try to show them there's more things in Southern California than doing drugs," Prochaska said in a recent interview.

The typical program participant, the major said, is 19 years old, small in stature, comes from a broken or disturbed home, is a high school dropout, a first-term enlistee and has had a prior record of drug or alcohol use before joining the corps.

"The underlying problem with most of these Marines is that they've never had much self-esteem." Hilbert said. "This program is designed to restore their self-confidence."

Prochaska said the small physical stature of many of the men has discouraged them because they were not able to keep up with their fellow Marines in training.

The introspection in the program is combined with survival. Each man is given two days of rations and left by himself at a remote site on the base — to survive.

"All that time, all by themselves, to think and evaluate where they've been and where they are going," Prochaska explained.

"After they come back into the barracks where they live during the program, we pretty much know who's going to make it and who isn't."

About 76 per cent of the program's participants have returned to duty and completed their service without further problems, the major said. Some have re-enlisted and become noncommissioned officers.

About 30 were found to be addicts and referred to medical counseling, while about 73 others were discharged early as unfit for duty, he said.

Dodgers lose, S.F. nears 2nd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Foster slugged a home run in the fifth inning and Tom and Clay Carroll combined for a seven-hitter to lead Cincinnati to a 1-0 victory over Los Angeles Saturday night.

The victory boosted the Reds' lead over the Dodgers to 14½ games in the National League West.

Foster also singled in the seventh to account for the only hits off loser Andy Messersmith, 13-10, who has lost six of his last seven decisions. Messersmith pitched eight innings before reliever Mike Marshall came on and gave up two singles to the Reds in the ninth.

Messersmith hadn't allowed the Reds a hit until Foster opened the fifth inning with his 17th homer into the leftfield pavilion.

Tom Carroll scattered seven hits into the seventh before Clay Carroll took over with runners at first and second and only one out.

He got Willie Crawford and Ron Cey on infield outs to escape the jam and preserve the victory for Tom Carroll, his fourth in five decisions. The save was the fifth for Clay Carroll.

Messersmith has won only once since June 30 despite pitching very effectively. In the six starts since June 30, the Dodgers have scored only six runs for Messersmith and have been shut out three times.

The Dodgers now lead the third place Giants by only a game. The current Reds-Dodgers series is not nearly as crucial as the schedule-makers once thought and the month just ended is a major reason why.

The Reds entered July with a seven-game lead over the Dodgers, and proceeded to double that lead in the span of four weeks. Cincinnati went 20-9 in the month, despite cooling off after the All-Star break from the surge that saw them win 41 out of 50 games.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, won 12 and lost 16 in July, closing out the month by blowing a 10-5 lead against Atlanta in the bottom of the ninth inning.

"This is the best team I've ever been on and probably the best I've ever seen," said outfielder Merv Rettenmund, who played on the championship Baltimore Oriole teams of several years back.

"This team has more pure talent than any of those Oriole teams. The Baltimore attitude was the same as it is here—we expected to win no matter who was pitching—but we did it basically with pitching and defense," he said.

"None of those Baltimore teams could have won 41 of 50 games in the National League West as the Reds did this year."

Rettenmund noted that the Reds also have more leadership than his former club.

"In Baltimore we had a leader in Frank Robinson," he said. "Here we have Johnny Bench, Joe Morgan, Pete Rose and Tony Perez. That's four guys to look to when the situation gets tough. Most teams are lucky to have one."

The 32-year-old righthander said both his managers, Earl Weaver and Sparky Anderson are excellent strategists, "but Earl wil play the percentages at all costs, not caring who he's hurt. Sparky is more of a hunch manager and will try to keep everyone happy."

With a 13½ game lead, going into Saturday's second game of the series, Anderson may not have too much trouble with that part of his job.

Doug Rau takes a 9-8 record into today's game against Cincinnati when he starts for the Dodgers. Pat Darcy goes for Cincinnati with a 7-5 mark.

Jim Kiick stars for Southmen

MEMPHIS (AP) — Former National Football League running back Jim Kiick scored three times and defensive tackle John Jordan and linebacker Bob Lally saved the Memphis Southmen's 27-26 victory over the Jacksonville Express in World Football League action Saturday night.

Jordan and Lally tackled Express running back Alfred Haywood at the 2-yard line to stop a Jacksonville extra-point effort after George Mira connected with Dennis Hughes for a 39-yard touchdown with eight seconds remaining.

Kiick had brought the hometown crowd, announced at 25,166, to its feet with 38 seconds left as he plunged over from the one to break a 19-19 deadlock.

Kiick's touchdown capped a 50-yard drive that began with a 32-yard kickoff return by Tim Beamer.

Fullback Larry Csonka, who came to the Southmen from the Miami Dolphins along with Kiick and wide receiver Paul Warfield, bore the brunt of the work in the final drive, carrying five times for 30 yards. Willie Spencer ran for 19 yards during Memphis' final drive.

Memphis' first touchdown came on quarterback John Huarte's pass to Kiick from the 10.

Memphis came back in the second period with a 60-yard drive that ended when Kiick went over the middle from the three.

Jacksonville tied it with 5:10 left in the half with a Mira-to-Hughes touchdown toss that covered 12 yards.

Memphis and Jacksonville exchanged field goals in the final quarter. Bob Etter hit from 24 yards to give Memphis a 19-16 advantage with 11:36 left and Charles Durkee tied it up again with a 25-yard kick with eight minutes left in the period.

In other WFL games, the Philadelphia Bell held off the Hawaiians, 21-15, Birmingham's defense stopped the Chicago Winds 10-0, and quarter back John Walton, one time Ram signal caller, tossed two touchdown passes in leading the San Antonio Wings to a 19-3 victory over the Shreveport Steamer.

A holding penalty nullified a last second touchdown pass by backup quarterback Sonny Sixkiller as the Bell defeated the Hawaiians.

The Hawaiians had moved to the Bell's 16 yard line in the final minute of play on pass interference and offsides penalties against Philadelphia.

With no time remaining, Sixkiller completed a pass to Tim Delaney in the end zone, but the Hawaiians' Dave Loerich was called for holding, nullifying the score.

The Bell built its lead on two touchdown passes by quarterback Jim "King" Corcoran, including a nine-yard toss to Ted Kwalick, formerly with the San Francisco 49er of the National Football League.

Philadelphia managed to hang on to its lead despite the efforts of former Dallas Cowboy Calvin Hill, who gained 132 yards on 32 carries.

But in the final four minutes, Hill, who earlier had scored on a 13-yard pass from quarterback Rick Cassata, was stopped on the Bell 30-yard line on fourth and two.

Corcoran displayed a consistent throwing arm before the paid crowd of 2,732 at Franklin Field, completing 13 of 25 passes including a 15-yarder in the third quarter that Ron Holliday turned into a 55-yard touchdown.

Holliday caught the pass on the Hawaiians' 40, evaded three tacklers, and scampered down the right sideline for the score and a 18-8 Bell lead.

Bob Cooper started the scoring for the Bell with a 37-yard field goal in the first quarter before the Hawaiians came back with Hill's touchdown.

Cooper added another field goal from 35 yards following the scoring passes to Kwalick and Holliday.

The Hawaiians closed to within six points in the fourth quarter when Clayton Heath scored on a two-yard run.

The season-opening victory was the first for Bell Coach Willie Wood.

Skin vets drop Bengals

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Washington's celebrated over-the-hill gang called on their years of playing wisdom to win the Pro Football Hall of Fame exhibition game in impressive fashion Saturday.

"Washington is a group of old heads that doesn't make errors. They let you knock yourself out if you make errors," said Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown after his Bengals dropped a 17-9 decision to the Redskins.

Brown was the voice of experience. Two costly Bengals' mistakes fired Washington to its pair of touchdowns, one a 48-yard bomb from Billy Kilmer to Charley Taylor.

George Allen, Washington's cheerleading coach, wore a big grin afterward.

"We showed pretty good condition, having been in camp a week later than the Bengals," said the man who has led his team to four successive playoff appearances.

"Today's game was the type of game you like because we used everybody and didn't have any serious injuries," said Allen.

The victory marked the fourth time that National Football Conference teams have beaten their American Football Conference rivals in the exhibition series.

Earlier in the day, George Connor, Dante Lavelli, Lenny Moore and Roosevelt Brown were inducted into the sport's shrine.

Oppressive, 93-degree heat failed to stymie Washington's veteran Redskins.

A sellout Fawcett Stadium crowd of almost 20,000 and a national television audience watched the Redskins convert Bengal errors into their two touchdowns.

A delay of game penalty against Cincinnati gave Washington a first down near midfield, keeping the Redskins' first drive alive.

Two plays later, Kilmer and Taylor hooked up on the only long scoring play to tie the game at 7-7 near the end of the first quarter.

An interception by Pat Fischer triggered the Redskins' other touchdown in the third quarter. The 15-year cornerback picked off a Ken Anderson pass at the Bengals' 31.

He fumbled. Brig Owens, another Washington veteran, picked up the loose ball and dashed to the Cincinnati nine. In two plays, Mike Thomas scored for a 17-9 lead.

Mark Mosley kicked a 34-yard field goal for Washington.

Theismann, a former Notre Dame All-American, was hurt on the play and taken to a hospital. Precautionary X rays showed he had a bruised right elbow.

Randy Johnson finished the game at quarterback for the Redskins after Kilmer, who hit 11 of 16 passes for 130 yards, had played the entire first half.

Theismann was in for two plays.

Both sides relied almost totally on veterans with Anderson, the leading NFL passer last season, playing nearly three quarters. The Bengals' standout could complete only nine of 23 aerials for 106 yards against a Redskin defense averaging 10 seasons per man.

Cincinnati capitalized on Washington errors for all of its points.

Tom Casanova's interception of a Kilmer pass launched the Bengals on their lone touchdown surge. Cincinnati drove 60 yards with Anderson's lob to Curtis capping the drive.

Theismann was scrambling to pass from his own 13 when he was tapped by Berry in the Washington end zone early in their third period.

Slumping MVP helps beat Angels

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Slumping Jeff Burroughs clubbed a double and home run and drove in four runs to lead the Texas Rangers to an 8-2 victory over the California Angels Saturday night.

Burroughs, the American League's Most Valuable Player last season but hitting only .224 at game time and already a strikeout victim 104 times this season, rapped Angel starter Dick Lange for a two-run double in the first inning. It came after Lange walked Dave Moates and Mike Hargrove.

Burroughs' 20th homer, a two-run shot off Ed Hockenbery, keyed a three-run fifth. Moates drilled a leadoff homer in the eighth for the Rangers and they added two more on Tom Grieve's single with the bases loaded.

Right-hander Bill Hands worked the first five innings for Texas to even his record at 6-6. It was the veteran right-hander's first victory since May 22. He left after five innings with a pulled groin muscle and Jim Umbarger and Stan Thomas finished up.

Adrian Garrett hit his first home run for the Angels off Hands in the fourth.

After Moates walloped his home run over the right field wall to lead off the Ranger eighth, Lenny Randle singled and stole second one out later.

Burroughs struck out for the second out of the inning, but Bob Jones and Toby Harrah walked to load the bases. Grieve then singled to left to score Randle and Jones with the Rangers' final runs.

Randle was also involved in the Rangers' scoring in the fifth. He drew a walk off Lange and went all the way to third on a passed ball by rookie catcher Ike Hampton before scoring on Hargrove's single.

Hockenberry came in at this point and Burroughs greeted him with a drive that just cleared the fence in right-center.

Sun season opens with Thunder

ANAHEIM (AP) — The lineups will look like a bunch of old West Coast collegiate football rosters strung together when the Portland Thunder meets the Southern California Sun today in the World Football League season opener for both clubs.

Starting at quarterback for the visitors will be Don Horn, a graduate of San Diego State. The Sun boasts former University of Southern California players Pat Haden at quarterback, Anthony Davis at halfback and wide receiver John McKay.

USC is also represented on the Thunder by wide receiver Earl McCullouch, center Dave Brown and offensive guard Alan Graf.

UCLA's contributions to Portland are tight end Bob Christiansen and running back Marv Kendricks.

In fact, 35 men on the Thunder's 50-man roster come from West Coast schools.

The Sun will be favored, partially because of a 47-16 victory over the supposedly loaded Memphis Southmen early in the preseason. But Portland Coach Greg Barton is more concerned about the Sun defense.

"It's one of the best—if not the best—in the league," said Barton. "I know we couldn't afford to lose a linebacker like Jim Baker, but with them all they do is move in a guy like James Sims. Dave Roller is one of the real superstars of the WFL." Baker, an outside linebacker, will miss about five games because of a leg injury.

Haden will start because Daryle Lamonica is out six to eight weeks with a hernia, for which surgery was performed.

Haden, the Rhodes scholar, had a slight separation of his left shoulder two weeks ago but has recovered. His backup man is impressive Mike Ernst, formerly of Fullerton State.

Stan Smith upset victim

CINCINNATI (AP) — Unseeded Sherwood Stewart upset No. 2 seed Stan Smith in three sets Saturday night to move into the finals of the $50,000 Western Tennis Championships against Tom Gorman.

Stewart, a 29-year-old from Goose Creek, Tex. with just two years on the pro tour, dumped the former Army captain who plays out of Sea Pines, S.C. 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 for his second major surprise of the tournament. He earlier defeated Australian Phil Dent, who had been seeded third.

He faces Gorman for the $9,000 top prize today. The seventh-seeded Seattle pro defeated Byron Bertram of South Africa in the semifinals 6-2, 7-6.

Gorman, who said Friday he was playing his best tennis in the past year, dominated No. 4 seed Cliff Drysdale of South Africa in the quarter-finals 6-2, 6-3. He won the first set Saturday easily and survived a tiebreaker to win the match in straight sets.

In a rain-delayed semifinal doubles match, Joachin LoyoMayo and Marcello Lara crushed the Cinderella team of Woody Blocher and Cliff Letcher 6-2, 6-4.

'Cyclist dies at Monterey

MONTEREY (AP) - Steven Souter, 24, North Vancouver, B. C., was killed instantly Saturday in a novice heat race during the Superbike International Weekend before some 8,000 shocked spectators.

Riding a 250 Yamaha, he crashed into the third turn on the opening lap of the race on the 1.9-mile twisting course on the Monterey Peninsula. He was hit by following rider. He was taken to Monterey Community Hospital but pronounced dead on arrival.

Some 340 machines were entered. In the big bike class, the preliminary qualifiers were led by Kenny Roberts of Modesto, Calif., on a Yamaha, the No. 1 American rider. In second place was Yvon du Hamel of Quebec, Canada, riding a Kawasaki.

Jensen defeats Rollo Galindo

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Willie Jenson, 109, the Nevada flyweight champion from Las Vegas, continued undefeated as he won his 19th battle with ease, whipping previously unbeaten Rollo Galindo, 112, of mexico City in a 10-round decision Saturday night.

It was Jenson's first time over the 10 round route and he stepped it off like a ballet dancer, snapping straight lefts into Galindo's face throughout the battle as the Mexico City fighter lost his first fight after 20 victories.

Galindo attempted to press the battle but was frustrated as the fight wore on and in the early rounds came up with a bruised left eye.

Jenson stepped to one side and then the other and circled as Galindo rushed him, with Willie slipping in left hands and usually finding the targets.

Rams, Broncs sharpen up

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Broncos and Rams conducted a two-hour passing and running scrimmage Saturday as the National Football League teams continued training.

In a passing drill pitting quarterbacks, running backs and receivers against the other team's linebackers and defensive secondary, Denver's John Hufnagel completed 14 of 20 passes for 281 yards and a pair of long touchdown strikes to rookie Jack Dolbin.

Charlie Johnson, the starting Bronco quarterback, connected on 13 of 21 for 271 yards and Steve Ramsey of Denver completed 12 of 19 for 200 yards.

James Harris of the Rams completed 16 of 28 for 219 yards, including an 80-yard touchdown bomb to Harold Jackson. Ron Jaworski hit 20 of 27 for 244 yards.

Tight end Riley Odoms was the top Denver receiver with seven catches for 112 yards and running back Lawrence McCutcheon grabbed seven for 40 yards for the Rams with Jackson catching a pair for 98 yards.

Tom Dempsey, the new Ram place kicker, hit on two of three field goal tries from 47 yards out.

Ram Coach Chuck Knox said he was pleased "with the way things went, we got a lot done. I'm extremely pleased with Harris and Jaworski but overall everything was very worthwhile."

The Rams had a slight advantage in completed aerials during the passing drills, 45 to 39, but Denver had by far the more impressive yardage statistics. The Broncos picked up 752 yards on their 39 receptions to only 520 for L.A. Two Denver catches went for TDs, as opposed to one for the Rams. Both teams suffered one interception.

Denver's Jack Dolbin, a former WFL player, led all pass catchers with 220 yards on only five receptions. Bronco Billy Van Heusen also had five catches, good for 120 yards.

Ralston had to leave the scrimmage early to attend his father's funeral in Laguna Hills. In the absence of the Bronco mentor, assistant coaches Joe Collier and Max Coley handled the troups.

"We accomplished much today," claimed defensive coordinator Collier. "The hitting was good, we looked a little vulnerable in the second and third-string secondary, but our starters performed well."

Coley, the Broncs' offensive coordinator, echoed Collier's views. "We have made a great deal of progress in the last week. Our showing today was much better than in the Dallas affair. If I had to single out one guy among the new people, it would obviously be Dolbin."

Dolbin is a 26-year old who is technically considered a rookie by NFL standards. The Wake Forest product played last year for the Chicago Fire and before that for the Pottstown Firebirds as a teammate of King Corcoran.

The Broncos did receive some bad news Saturday, as it was learned that safety Clarence Ellis had reinjured his left knee in Friday's practice and may be shelved for the year. Ellis, obtained from Atlanta during the off-season, had knee surgery in May and had been out of pads until Friday.

On the first play of passing drill Friday, Ellis did a stutter step to avoid colliding with a receiver and collapsed in pain. An examination at Pomona Valley Hospital revealed new ligament damage to the knee which will require more surgery.

The Broncs will continue their two-a-day practice sessions through Tuesday after taking today off. The Monday and Tuesday morning sessions will be in shorts instead of full gear to put in the Bronco kicking game.

Santa Monica Post 330's foe

SANTA MARIA — La Verne Post 330 will be facing Santa Monica today at 12 noon in the American Legion Area 6 Tournament finals. The game will be played at Allen Hancock Junior College.

Santa Monica (16-2) earned another shot at Post 330 by whipping host team Santa Maria 8-3 Saturday. La Verne (21-13-1) had beaten Santa Monica 7-6 earlier in the tourney.

Needing but one win today to wrap up the Area 6 title and a trip to the state Legion playoffs at Yountville, Post 330 manager Earl Bumstead will send lefty Curt Burkhart to the hill in the first game. If a second contest is necessary, Bill Bumstead will get the starting mound assignment.

THAT'S SOME DOME! — Louisiana construction worker Earl Millet gazes down at the interior of the giant facility from its upper-most seats. The $164 million Superdome opens today to the public despite the fact that construction is still continuing on the interior to ready it for the August 9 Saints' exhibition game.

Superdome opens ... finally

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Ready or not, a still unfinished Louisiana Superdome opens its doors to the public Sunday, a year late and $71 million over original cost estimates.

The $164 million multipurpose arena still has gaps in ceilings, acres of carpeting remaining to be put in place, and wires dangling loose in walls not yet covered with plaster.

Some concession stands are not finished, and many of the 88 rest rooms don't work.

Nevertheless, the Superdome is opening, due to a commitment to the New Orleans Saints, who begin their National Football League exhibition season in the Dome Aug. 9.

Originally, Sunday's opening was planned as a pregame orientation session for Saints fans but it wound up as six hours of election year political speeches and jazz and Cajun music—all free.

Among those scheduled to speak was former Gov. John McKeithen, who embraced the modest dream of promoter Dave Dixon 10 years ago, expanded it into the current 30-story, 13-acre pleasure dome.

Also on the program was Gov. Edwin Edwards, who has until recently avoided contact with or comment on the Dome.

Dixon, the man who promoted the idea of an enclosed stadium to lure an NFL franchise to the city, is not on the list of speakers, even though he stumped the state to pass the constitutional amendment necessary to get state backing and presided as executive director over the early stages of contruction.

He was later deposed from the executive director job in the various political maneuverings over the stadium.

The stadium was presented originally as a $35 million football arena. That concept changed almost immediately. McKeithen and Dixon led the campaign to create a stadium that could be altered in shape and seating capacity by moving sections of seats on rails—a stadium equally suited for basketball and football, baseball and rock concerts. The cost expanded with the changed concepts.

Two dozen lawsuits and inability to sell construction bonds delayed the start of the project, and inflation boosted the cost still more.

After 18 months of such delays, the lowest bid received was for $93 million. Continued inflation, changes in construction plans, interest and refinancing costs boosted the price to the current $164 million.

At the same time costs were rising, the opening was being delayed. When the first piling was being driven early in 1971, stadium officials said some 1973 Saints football games could be played in the Dome. The 1975 Super Bowl was scheduled in the Dome, but had to be moved to Tulane Stadium.

Work will continue at the Dome between football games.

Allison surprises; gains Pocono pole

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — Bobby Allison knocked more than two miles an hour off the track record Saturday and put his surprising Matador on the pole position for today's 500-mile stock car race at Pocono International Raceway.

David Pearson, an earlier qualifier, appeared to have the No. 1 starting spot locked up for the $102,000 race until Allison's record-smashing run.

The Roger Penske-prepared Matador took its first pole of the season with a speed of 146.591 miles an hour around the 2½-mile tri-oval, erasing Buddy Baker's 1974 mark of 144.122 m.p.h.

Baker's Ford will start in the second row, behind Pearson in the Wood brothers' Mercury and Allison. Dave Marcis' Dodge completed the second row.

Richard Petty, who needs only to finish third or better to top $2 million in career NASCAR winnings, had a disappointing run in his Dodge and will start outside Cale Yarborough's Chevrolet in the third row.

The first six starters each qualified faster than Baker's former standard for the Grand National sedans.

Allison, whose best lap was almost a full second faster than his morning practice times, denied he was sandbagging—saving a little extra speed for qualifying.

The car was just handling so well in the turns, Allison insisted. "We could run almost flat out through turn two and turn three.

Petty was philosophical about his effort.

"We would have like to run a little faster than sixth," Petty said. "Third or fourth is usually what I call the pole for me anyway.

"We don't win the pole position that much because we stick with the setup we race with. We'll still be plenty competitive Sunday."

The 40-car lineup is scheduled for a 1 p.m. EDT start.

The race is sponsored by Purolator, Inc.

Dodger notes

Steve Garvey remains the most consistent Dodger, with hits in 87 games going into Friday night.

Drysdale, now a California Angel announcer, has joined the lineup for the Dodgers' Oldtimer game on Aug. 24.

Billy Martin comes home

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin came home Saturday, donning his old No. 1 pinstripes and taking over as manager of the New York Yankees.

"This has got to be one of my biggest thrills," said the fiery Martin, who was greeted by a loud chorus of cheers mixed with jeers when introduced to the Shea Stadium crowd during Old-Timers Day ceremonies prior to Saturday's game against the Cleveland Indians.

"It's great to be back where it all started."

Martin, who began his major league career as a player with the Yankees in 1950, was named to replace Bill Virdon as manager by club President Gabe Paul at a Saturday morning news conference.

The Yankees are Martin's fourth managerial post in the majors in the past seven years. He led the Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers to pennants and the Texas Rangers to a second-place finish, but each time he was fired after a dispute with management. He was ousted from the Rangers post less than two weeks ago.

Yankee management is hoping Martin will be able to arouse a club which had been expected to challenge for the American League's Eastern Division pennant, but which instead is lagging in third place.

Paul said Martin's availability was too much to pass up.

"If Billy Martin hadn't been available, Bill Virdon would still be the manager of the Yankees," Paul said after concluding a whirlwind week of travel and telephoning that led to the announcement which began Saturday's news conference: "There has been a change of managers for the New York Yankees. Billy Martin has been named."

As Paul spoke, the manager's office had been cleared of Virdon's gear, making way for the new field boss. Virdon is not expected to remain with the club. The bare locker was all that remained of his tenure, save the memories of last season—the best for the Yankees since they won their last pennant in 1964—and the gloom of the disappointing showing thus far in 1975.

Martin was on a fishing trip in Glade Park, Colo., last week when he was reached by Paul, through Martin's father-in law, Cy Winkler. They began negotiations Wednesday, reached agreement Friday and finally, at 1:30 a.m. Saturday, signed a contract making Martin the skipper of the New York Yankees through 1976.

"What should he have done? Gone up to the guy and said, 'Gee, I'm sorry. This is the best guy to put in the lineup?' This club has a lot of talent. You've got to have a little pride in yourself; we should have taken it upon ourselves to play better."

Martin said he planned to keep the Yankee coaching staff, and that his immediate plans were to meet with the players and coaches.

Virdon's critics called him colorless and dull; Martin has created excitement wherever he's been.

Martin has been involved in numerous brawls on and off the field, the most publicized of which took place in a New York nightclub and drew a $1,000 fine from American League President Joe Cronin. Martin's other better-known fights involved the late Clint Courtney, a catcher, and pitchers Jim Brewer and Dave Boswell.

Martin's managerial record is one of remarkable achievement. But despite his success, he has been unable to last three full years in any post.

"When you're a young boy, you dream of becoming a Yankee," Martin said. "I was a Yankee, and now I'm the Yankee manager. Who could ask for more?"

Weiskopf lead drops to two strokes in heat

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, who appeared poised for a runaway, struggled through 104 degree heat to a round of par 72 and watched his once-commanding lead dwindle to two strokes Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

The brutal heat and oppressive, 80 percent humidity— which sent at least one spectator to the hospital—and Pat Fitzsimons' charging 66 cut deeply into the seven-stroke lead that Weiskopf enjoyed at the start of the hottest day of the year on the tour.

From a Weiskopf rout it became a race. Now, eight players are within seven shots of the leader. At the end of the second round, no one was that close.

Weiskopf, a playoff winner over Jack Nicklaus last weekend, now takes a 201 total, 15-under-par, into Sunday's final round over the sweltering, 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club, where the golfers are battling for a $50,000 first prize.

Fitzsimons, the quiet little red-haired guy who won the Los Angeles Open earlier in the season, came out of a closely-bunched pack with his six-under-par effort and now is second alone at 203.

Fitzsimons' five-under-par 31 on the back nine actually pulled him to within one stroke of Weiskopf at one time.

But Weiskopf, playing in the group behind Fitzsimons, reached the par-five 18th hole with a three-iron second shot— just as the national television cameras ended their coverage for the day—and two-putted for the birdie that gave him a two-shot advantage.

"It seems that everybody has one bad round in a golf tournament," Weiskopf said. "This was mine. Or at least I hope it was mine."

A pair of veterans, Gene Littler, 45, and Julius Boros, 54, moved into the third and fourth positions. Littler, a two-time winner this season, had a 69— 205 and the slow-moving Boros had a 70—206.

Rod Funseth, Lyn Lott and rookie Bruce Lietzke were next at 207. Lott shot a 68, Funseth a 70 and Lietzke had a 66.

"I've never played in heat like this in my life," said Lietzke, who grew up in Beaumont on the Texas Gulf Coast and went to school in Houston.

Defending champion Johnny Miller appeared out of it. He had a 71—214.

South African Gary Player failed to qualify for the final two rounds. Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer are not playing in this rich event.

No-hitter spices L.L. tourney

A no-hitter by Richard Yett of Optimist Club highlighted action Saturday afternoon in the Pomona Little League City Tournament at Montvue Park.

Yett fanned 14 men as his mates bested McDonald's 4-0. The only blemish on Yett's pitching slate came in the first inning when he hit McDonald's Bernardo Valenzuela with a pitch.

In other games played Saturday in the tourney, PPA-Southwest nipped PPA-National 5-4 in eight innings in a battle of Pomona Police-sponsored teams, while Park Ave. Hospital edged Shakey's Pizza 2-1.

Gabe Rodriguez three-run homer had given PPA-Southwest a 4-0 lead entering the top of the sixth, but PPA-National's Ron Lawson belted a grand slam home run in that frame to tie the contest.

Southwest won it in the last of the eighth as Eric Northrup came across on a wild pitch. Lupe Jimenez picked up the win in relief.

Robert Sanchez outdueled Mike Kidwell to notch the pitching victory for Park Ave., recording nine strikeouts in the process. Eric Mendivil had three hits for Park, while Troy Thomas drove home the winning tally in the fifth inning.

Semi-finals in the tourney are slated for Tuesday.

LOSES GROUND — The market lost ground in relatively slow trading as investors worried about a renewed bout of inflation. The past week also showed the lowest trading volume in three months.

Signs of a rally hurt by worries

By CHET CURIER

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made a gesture at a rally this past week, but couldn't work itself free from persistent worries over the outlook for food prices and interest rates.

The result was the fifth straight weekly decline in the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials — a 7.59 drop to 826.50.

Since the last weekend in June the average has fallen 46.62 points.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index showed a weekly loss of 1.30 at 87.99, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index was off .77 at 47.10.

Declining issues overshadowed those advancing 1,260 to 490 among the 1,993 traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume averaged a comparatively meager 15.57 million shares a day running at its slowest pace in three months.

On Friday, only 13.32 million changed hands, making it the quietest day of the year.

The week produced its share of seemingly favorable developments in the economic news. For starters, the nation posted record trade surpluses for June and for the second quarter as a whole.

The government's index of leading economic indicators provided further encouragement for hopes for an economic recovery, registering its fourth straight monthly rise in June.

Factory orders rose again in the same month, while businesses continued to work down their inventories.

And the governnent reported that the nation's unemployment rate eased off in July at 8.4 per cent from 8.6 the month before.

But the best response the market could produce to all that was a smattering of periodic rally attempts that all failed to attract any lasting support.

The trouble, analysts said, lay in the same worries that have been dogging the market since the middle of last month — rising interest rates and concern that resurgent food costs might spark a new flareup of inflation.

Weekly Federal Reserve statistics were interpreted as showing additional moves by the Fed to restrict the expansion of money and credit.

The central bank has acknowledged taking some such steps this summer. Their stated purpose is to combat inflation, but they have also exerted upward pressure on interest rates.

The food price concerns focused on the potential effects of Russian grain purchases and dry weather in some farming areas.

Fed Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Monday he was concerned that grain buying by the Soviet Union might lead to substantially higher food prices in this country.

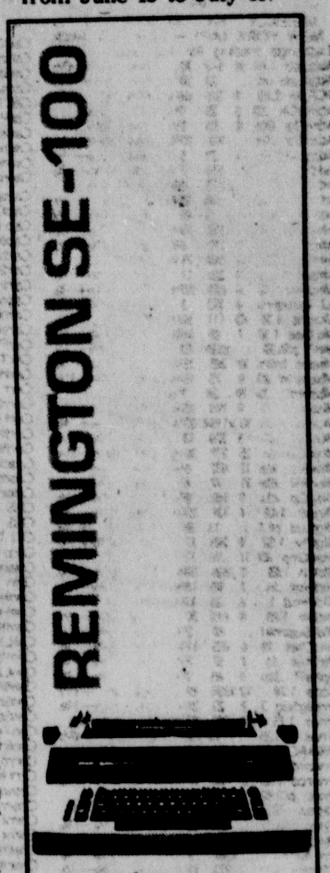

On Thursday, the Agriculture Department reported that farm prices had risen 3 per cent in the latest reporting month, from June 15 to July 15.

Boeing layoff may hit 8,000

SEATTLE (AP) — Because of a one-third drop in aircraft sales, the Boeing Co. has announced plans to layoff a total of 8,000 workers by year's end.

In January, Boeing officials predicted that the firm would lose between 2,000 and 8,000 employes in the Puget Sound area by the end of 1975, depending on economic conditions.

Already, Boeing has dropped 5,700 workers since mid-February, which means another 2,300 employes will be trimmed from the payroll.

Rock Hudson just wrapped up his starring role in "Embryo," and he is enthusiastic about it. The picture deals with a research scientist, doing work on fetal development outside the womb. It asks the age-old question: can a fetus grow independently? Hmmm?

Financing a home is major concern

Real estate

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Prospective home buyers have many concerns these days. Far and away the greatest are those involving money.

This is not a particularly perceptive observation. I — and you — have known it for some time. But it became especially crystal clear the other night when I attended a question-and-answer session for couples interested in purchasing houses.

The panelists were experts in the field — architect Herman York, builder Donald Eversoll, mortgage financier Stanley Greenstein, attorney Herbert Balin and real estate sales director Bob Lewis, along with the president of the Long Island Builders Institute, Andy Monaco, and its executive secretary, Thomas Junor.

Questions followed each other in rapid succession from the several hundred persons in attendance. The large majority of those queries related in some way to the cost of buying a home — such as mortgage availability, interest rates, construction and closing costs, real estate taxes, attorney fees, tax deductions, large or small down payments and even how to determine what price house can be afforded.

What emerged from the replies was a general feeling that costs, of whatever kind, are not going down. It was pointed out that, even if there should be a small drop in interest rates in the future, waiting a year or two to buy a house would be unwise, not only because prices might rise, but because the purchaser would have lost the average annual appreciation of from 10 to 15 per cent that keeps occurring.

When architect York admitted that a builder often asks an architect to change an original plan to omit one or more of the amenities, builder Eversoll asserted that this has become necessary these days to bring a house down to a marketable price. My own mail makes it clear that much of the home-buying public is willing to accept less than it might have a few years ago, provided that, in return, it gets a house it can afford.

And how much can a family afford to spend on a house? As one of the panelists said — and as I have maintained in writings for many years — the old rough rule of thumb about purchasing a house two and one-half times your annual gross income is completely ineffective.

Even in the days when families were on a pay-as-you-go basis and taxes were low, it had questionable validity. Today, when the vital factor is not how much you make, but how much you owe, a different method must be used.

What you have left every month after you pay your bills is what counts most, along with such other factors as the family situation, future wage prospects and your own ability to handle responsibilities. These are among the considerations the banks and savings and loan associations give weight to when processing your application for a loan.

Putting all the facts and figures down on paper is a big help in reaching a decision. Surprisingly, many persons discover they have more assets than they might have supposed in a quick, mental estimate.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Follow checklist when buying home

Existing homes frequently offer buyers more space for their money than new homes. In addition, older homes usually are located in established communities where schools, churches, shopping and public transportation already are at hand. And chances are the grounds surrounding an older home are better landscaped and planted than those around a new house would be.

"There are potential problems, though. Just as some of us tend to deteriorate with age, so do houses. So, if you're planning to buy an older home, there are certain things you should check first," said Walter Arnold, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

The following list contains items to check outside the house. Later columns will contain indoor checklists.

— Be sure the home's outside walls are in good shape. If they're made of brick or stone, test the mortar — especially near the ground — with a screwdriver to see whether it's firm or powdery. Crumbling mortar can let water in, and water might crack the masonry and damage interior walls.

— Check brick walls for bulges that could indicate structural defects or brick veneer coming loose. Check non-masonry walls for a good fit at joints and in corners; gaps give water a chance to rot framing underneath. Examine paint, too — if it has blistered, flaked or peeled down to the wood, it could mean that walls were built with no vapor barrier.

— Inspect the roof for loose or missing shingles that permit rain to seep in. Make sure the metal flashing at junctions — such as where the roof meets a wall or chimney is in good shape. And, if possible, inspect the roof and chimney for loose mortar.

— Find out how old the roof is and what it's made of. Some roofing materials last longer than others. For example, common asphalt shingle roofing usually lasts 15 to 20 years and sometimes equals wood and asbestos cement — which lasts 30 years or so — in durability. Slate and clay tile can remain in good condition 40 years or more.

— Be certain wood elements of the house — supports for a deck, for example — rest on concrete to prevent rot and deter termites. And be sure to examine the foundation for mud tubes that termites build. Even if you don't see tubes, termits may be present, so ask the owner for evidence of termite inspection and control.

— And, speaking of termites, check any exposed wood for holes or sawdust produced by wood-boring insects, such as carpenter ants and bees.

— Examine the driveway, patio or other paved surfaces for any indication of uneven settling. Don't worry about small cracks in concrete —these are common. Do worry about big ones that might recur even after repairing if the soil underneath concrete is the cause. And check for low spots — these collect water that could seep into the house. One way to find out is to visit the house right after a rain.

— Finally, make sure gutters and downspouts are clean, free of rust and in good repair. Downspouts should discharge onto splash blocks directed away from the house, or into drains or an underground dry well. In addition, the ground should slope away from the house so that rain runs off in the proper direction.

Two are honored for sales

Bea Purkey and Tom Joyce have sales in excess of $1.7 million and personal earnings by May 1 exceeding $25,000 to qualify them as "salesmasters" by Herbert Hawkins Realtors.

Mrs. Purkey has qualified for the "salesmaster" designation for three years and has been a member of the firm's "Million $" sales club since joining the firm five years ago.

An associate broker, she has been involved in real estate for 21 years and formerly operated her own office in San Gabriel and Monterey Park. She works in the Temple City office.

Joyce has been the firm's top sales leader for the past three years and is also a member of the "Million $" club.

Mark III entering 3rd phase

Most of the homes in the Mark III Homes second phase of development have been sold and the third phase will be opening soon.

The $12.5 million development is located on a 70 acre site on Mountain Avenue north of Foothill Boulevard in Upland.

The three and four bedroom homes, with up to 2,100 square feet of floor space, are priced from $45,495 to $54,495. Buyers may select from four floor plans.

The homes feature air conditioning, raised ceramic tile entries, double ovens, ranges, dishwashers, garbage disposals, and wall-to-wall carpeting in the major living areas.

One house plan also has garden bathrooms with step-up tubs surrounded by Corian marble.

Custom details include gas plumbing for the patio area, plumbing for an ice maker refrigerator, intercom system with AM/FM radio, and plumbing for a water softener.

Each home is built on a "pool-sized" lot and the backyards are fenced. Heavy Monray Spanish tile roofs are guaranteed for 50 years. All utilities are underground and street trees and lighting are installed. Furnished model homes are open daily for viewing.

Recently added to the sales staff was Phyllis Freeborn of Upland. She has four years experience in real estate which includes the sale of new home divisions and condominium projects in Upland, Ontario and Brea.

In Claraboya:

Early buyers select colors

Persons who purchase a home in Armstrong Development Corp.'s new Claraboya development before the structure is completed may select their own built-in furnishings.

Fifteen three and four bedroom homes are scheduled for completion next month. Advance sales are being made.

"By buying at this stage of construction, families can choose their own colors and patterns in carpeting, draperies, flooring and wallpaper," said Ronnie Armstrong, marketing director.

"It also provides them the chance to completely color-coordinate kitchen appliances and appointments and select all bathroom and cabinet hardware."

The homes, priced from $75,500, are built on minimum half-acre hillside lots. Most homes have more than 2,500 square feet of living area. Buyers have a choice of three floor plans and nine exteriors.

The homes feature sunken living rooms, formal dining rooms, separate family rooms, wet bars, wood burning fireplaces, intercommunication systems and indoor planters.

Kitchens include dinette areas, self cleaning double ovens, ranges, dishwashers, vinyl flooring, luminous overhead lighting and full pantries.

Bedroom suites have sunken Roman tubs, private dressing areas, walk-in closets and mirrored wardrobes.

Each home has central air conditioning, three car garages and separate laundry rooms.

Market agrees to hire more black workers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hughes Markets, Inc. has agreed to hire at least one black employe for every five other employes hired until 10 per cent or more of its work force is black.

A consent decree was filed Monday in a suit filed by Clifford A. Lawson, 47, who claimed the chain discriminated against blacks. Of 1,400 employes, the suit alleged, only 2 per cent are black.

Hughes did not admit violating civil rights laws but agreed to an intensive recruiting drive to increase the number of its black employes.

Home warranty program aids buyers and sellers

Recent initiation of a voluntary national home warranty insurance program will protect both buyer and seller, according to the head of the California Association of Realtors (CAR).

Richard C. Farrer, president of the 80,000-member organization, said the program "demonstrates the leadership of Realtors in protection of the public as well as advancement of the real estate industry.

"Under the program," Farrer stated, "buyers of existing homes will obtain protection against failure of the home's major components for at least one year."

"The seller would be informed of the program by the Realtor.

"A professional inspection would follow with a report presented stating all home components can be covered, or that a home can be covered with one or more of its components excluded."

Farrer pointed out that the seller then has the option of bringing the deficient components up to standard, buying the insurance contract with the exclusion or declining to purchase the coverage.

Components covered include plumbing, heating, air conditioning, electrical systems, roof, floors, ceilings, and walls as to structural soundness, Farrer said.

The CAR leader said the program will provide needed protection to the consumer against expensive undisclosed faults "in what is usually the most important investment a person makes during a lifetime."

"It protects the seller from any implied liability that might exist and at the same time removes a Realtor from the traditional position of being an arbitrator of such disputes," Farrer stated.

Cost of the program, including the inspection and the warranty contract, would be about one-half of one per cent of the purchase price, according to the Realtor chief.

"For example," he said, "on a $35,000 home, the cost would be about $175 for one year's protection. Cost can be kept at a low level by inclusion of a deductible as is common in homeowners and automobile physical damage insurance. The owner will pay the first $100 for repairs to any covered components with the protection contract paying for the balance of the repair or replacement cost."

To date three companies have been approved by the National Association of Realtors. To qualify these firms had to provide proof of financial stability and be capable of conducting business in all 50 states. Other companies may become eligible in the future, provided they meet requirements.

Farrer said the three companies will provide coverage for the following: the central heating system, the interior plumbing system including the hot water heater, the electrical system, the structural soundness of the exterior and interior walls, including floors and ceilings, the structural soundness of the foundation and basement, the structural soundess of the roof, and the air conditioning system.

"The entire program is the product of extensive and critical analysis of the legal and practical problems created by defects in used homes," Farrer said.

"With the institution of this program we now have better protected the home-buying public.

"Moreover, we have shown the willingness and ability of Realtors and private enterprise to recognize and meet the needs of the public without reliance on governmental assistance."

Fairway homes now open

Furnished model homes are open for inspection daily from 11 a.m. until dusk at Fairway Hills, a LaSolana Corp. development of single family homes in Walnut.

Many of the first 25 homes built have been sold but reservations are being taken on the second unit, said Peter Peterson of Herbert Hawkins Realtors. A total of 117 homes is planned.

The homes feature vaulted ceilings, double-door entries, raised entry foyers and pass-through patio bars.

Buyers have a choice of single, split-level and two-story plans. These have from 1,600 to 2,318 square feet of space. The homes are priced from $51,995 to $64,995 with conventional financing offered.

To reach the homes, persons may drive east on the Pomona Freeway to the Nogales Street turn-off, go south to Colima Road and then east to the model homes.

For those traveling west on the Pomona Freeway, they may take the Brea Canyon turn-off and turn south to Colima then drive west to the Fairway Hills signs.

The La Solana Corp. is a division of Sumitomo Realty and Development Corp., Ltd., a world-wide real estate firm. Its previous development of 142 homes in Walnut was sold by the Hawkins firm within nine months.

Dial '911' has 1982 deadline

Valley residents by 1982 will be able to dial a single number, "911" for emergency calls such as police, fire and ambulance.

A state Assembly bill has set a deadline of Dec. 31, 1982, for statewide implementation of the emergency telephone number. Tentative plans for implementation of the emergency system were submitted Jan. 31 by local public agencies and communities.

Final plans for implementing the new system must be submitted by local agencies no later than Jan. 31, 1977, said Jack M. King, public affairs administrator for General Telephone Co.

"The 911 concept isn't new," he added. "It has been proposed for a number of years by law enforcement and fire protection services and by their national professional organizations."

"In 1968, the telephone industry announced its commitment to 911 as the national emergency number and the first 911 system went into operation at Huntington, Ind., in March of that year," he said.

"Some 300 communities in the nation now have the 911 service but only California has specified a statewide implementation timetable."

Local implementation of the 911 system depends on the priority given it by the local public agencies and on state financing, said King.

Once the local communities decide on the type of 911 system they want and agree on an acceptable method of routing such calls to appropriate agencies, the telephone company can install the basic service within one year, he added.

ELLA RUBY

Realty officer named

Ella Ruby has been appointed executive officer of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

She replaces Faye Gage who became executive officer of the newly formed Hacienda Heights — Walnut Board of Realtors.

Miss Ruby, a Pomona resident for the past 10 years, recently received her bachelor of science degree in law from Western State University in Fullerton.

She was previously employed by General Dynamics in Pomona and the Lockheed Aircraft Service Co. in Ontario.

In taking her new job, Miss Ruby said she would seek to have the board become more involved in community programs and also to be a coordinating agency to help Realtors.

"We want to get more people active in the board," she added.

Miss Ruby will head a staff of two secretaries.

Home builders seek added tax reforms

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has urged Congress to enact tax reforms which would assist homebuilders and other small businessmen in their struggle against recession and stimulate production and employment in the depressed housing industry.

The request was made by the 74,000-member NAHB in a letter to Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., chairman of the Select Committee on Small Business, which is holding hearings on the effects of proposed tax reforms on small businesses.

Recently passed tax cuts offer "little assistance to small builders, or for that matter, to other small businessmen who face a continuing economic crisis," NAHB Executive Vice President Nathaniel Rogg wrote, noting that a large majority of homebuilders construct fewer than 50 units a year.

Rogg endorsed a plan, approved by the House Ways and Means Committee last year, to increase tax incentives for all small businesses. The House plan included proposals to boost the first year depreciation allowance on property from $10,000 to $15,000 and to increase from 5 to 10 years the period over which net operating losses may be carried during the first 10 years of operation of a business.

"An additional tax incentive to home builders would be the extension of the investment tax credit to the construction of residential property," Rogg said, adding that the increase in the investment tax credit provision provided by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 will stimulate large industries' investment in plant expansion and machinery but is of little use to homebuilders.

An investment tax credit for housing for a two-year period, he said, would stimulate new construction, create thousands of jobs for unemployed skilled craftsmen and generate millions of dollars in new tax revenues which would more than offset any initial federal tax loss. The credit would be based on a builder's actual construction costs, including material, labor and subcontractor costs but not land.

"The home building industry has suffered longer and more severely during the current economic downturn than any other industry," Rogg said. Yet it seems housing is still being used as an anti-inflationary weapon while other industries are receiving stimuli by tax laws in order to reverse the nation's recession. This is extremely unfair to the many thousands whose housing needs are unmet, but it is a grave ecnomic injustice to the industry and the many small businessmen who comprise the large majority of our nation's home builders."

Actor resting comfortably after surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Edgar Buchanan, one of Hollywood's best known character actors, was reported in good condition after surgery to relieve fluid pressure on his brain.

Buchanan, 72, was reported resting comfortably in a Hollywood hospital after Thursday's operation and his son, Buck Buchanan, said "we expect the best for him."

Buchanan, who appeared in more than 100 movies and television shows, was best known for his role as Uncle Joe in the long-running comedy series "Petticoat Junction."

The U.S. Dept. of HUD OFFERS YOU Outstanding Real Estate Values

SPECIAL NOTICE
A NEW SALES PROCEDURE

This bid opening will be for BOTH Homeowner-Occupants and Investors. Bids from homeowner-Occupants will be opened first and will receive priority in the sale. Bids on those properties not sold first to Homeowner-Occupants will then be opened for investors. It is extremely important that the bid envelopes be clearly marked "Homeowner-Occupant," or "Investor".

IMPORTANT INSTRUCTIONS: READ CAREFULLY

First Priority in acceptance will be given offers from prospective homeowner-occupants. Offers from investor-purchaser will be opened if no acceptable offer is received from Homeowner-occupant bidders. All offers must be submitted on the "Offer to Purchase and Broker Tender (Form 9551) THE OUTSIDE OF THE BID ENVELOPE MUST HAVE THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION:

1. "Homeowner-Occupant" or "Investor"
2. Date of Bid Opening
3. Property Address-Zip Code
4. Case Number

On All Homeowner-Purchase offers, the following certification MUST be written on the back of the Offer to Purchase (Form 9551) and signed by the Homeowner Purchaser: "I CERTIFY THAT I AM PURCHASING THIS PROPERTY AS A HOMEOWNER-OCCUPANT." FAILURE TO SHOW CERTIFICATION WILL REQUIRE THAT THE OFFER BE TREATED AS AN INVESTOR PURCHASER REGARDLESS OF HOW THE BID ENVELOPE IS MARKED.

The government will hold a sealed bid sale on the properties listed below. Bids are to be opened August 19, 1975, 9 A.M. at 2500 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Cal., Room 404. OFFERS MUST BE SUBMITTED TO ROOM 414, 2500 WILSHIRE BOULEVARD, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA. NO OFFERS WILL BE ACCEPTED AFTER 4:30 P.M. AUGUST 18, 1975. The Property Disposition Branch will no longer accept back-up offers. The high bidder gets the property. All guaranteed properties must close within sixty (60) days. If the sale fails through, HUD will relist the property. HUD reserves the right to withdraw any or all of the properties in this listing without notice, prior to the close of escrow. Damages for failure of performance would be extremely difficult to determine in the event buyer fails to comply with all terms of the accepted offer. It is for this reason mutually understood and agreed that HUD shall retain the successful bidder's deposit as liquidated damages and as HUD's sole remedy against buyer. However, if the sale is rejected by HUD, the deposit will be refunded.

COUNTDOWN CONTINUES!
THIS WEEKS COUNTDOWN SALE FEATURES THE '75 FUEL INJECTION OPEL!
OPEL SALE . . . NEW & USED

HERE NOW 1975 OPEL
The Low-Priced Fuel Injection Economy Car!

A surface glance at these new, special-edition Opels won't tell you much about what's so special about them. But pop the bonnet on one, and the news is evident. The conventional air cleaner is gone - replaced by a cavernous cold air box. It filters cooler, outside air and feeds it into the injection system. And the carburetor? Don't look for it - replaced by a highly-sophisticated Bosch electronic control unit (actually a miniature, on-board computer) accurately meters out a precise amount of fuel which is delivered directly to the intake vales. First and foremost Opel is a road car. Test drive yours today and feel the difference.

FUN FACTS® from WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT GUM

ICE AND SNOW WERE CARRIED BY SLAVES FROM THE ALPS TO ROME. IT WAS THEN SWEETENED WITH HONEY AND FRUIT PULP TO MAKE FLAVORED ICES FOR EMPEROR NERO (A.D. 37-68).

THE ARABIAN HORSE IS THE OLDEST AND PUREST BREED. IT DATES BACK TO THE 7TH CENTURY WHEN IT WAS DEVELOPED FOR ITS RIDING SPEED AND STAMINA IN WARFARE.

UNLIKE HUMAN TEETH, BITING EDGES OF GOPHER INCISORS HAVE NO ENAMEL, SO THEY WEAR DOWN AT THE SAME FAST RATE THAT THEY GROW.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

LINDA TIMM, OF KANSAS CITY, KS, ASKS: "HOW IS GLASS MADE?"

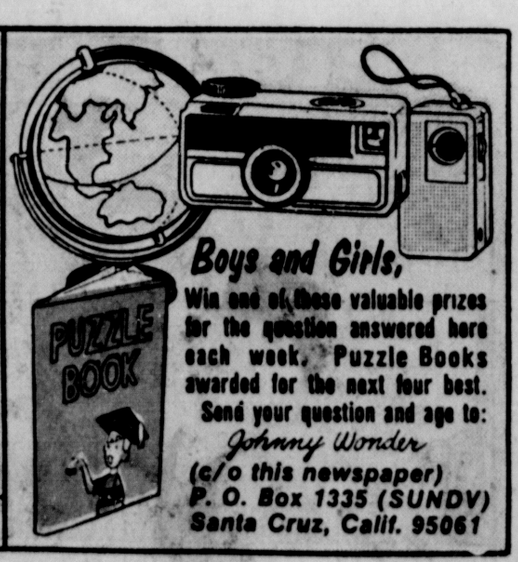

GLASS IS MADE MOSTLY OF SAND. TO MAKE ORDINARY GLASS, THE SAND IS MIXED WITH SMALL AMOUNTS OF CHEMICALS KNOWN AS SODA AND LIME. THE MIXTURE IS HEATED IN A FURNACE AT SUCH A HIGH TEMPERATURE THAT IT MELTS INTO A THICK, SYRUPY MASS. WHEN THIS COOLS, IT IS GLASS. THE RED-HOT, MELTED GLASS GOES INTO MACHINES THAT ROLL, BLOW, DRAW, PRESS, OR CAST IT INTO GLASS JARS, LIGHT BULBS, AND OTHER GLASS OBJECTS.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — After I buy new blue jeans I wash them with old, faded ones and the dye from the new ones perks up the color in the faded ones. — LINDA.

© 1975 by NEA, Inc.

DEAR POLLY — Before going on a trip prepare a complete meal, wrap it carefully in foil and freeze. When you return home there will be a good meal waiting to be put in the oven in a hurry. — DOROTHY.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — I have many house plants on stands. Under these stands I keep a small watering can full of water. This not only provides lukewarm water (cold water does seem to shock them), but when I walk past, any needed watering can be done quickly and easily. — HEIDE.

DEAR POLLY — Those slide-out metal towel racks for use under the sink make very practical tie racks when installed in a closet. Save the plastic hangers that come with clip-ons and hang them right on the racks, too. — KENT.

DEAR POLLY — When using the oven to cook the main part of a meal, if I plan to serve a canned vegetable I strip off the can label, remove the lid and set it, too, in the oven to heat. I pour contents into a serving dish and season as desired while hot. Another electricity saver! — BARBARA.

DEAR POLLY — No-longer-wearable nylons are great to use for tying vegetables growing in the garden. They won't harm the tender plants. — MARY S.

DEAR POLLY — Spray a new plastic tablecloth with spray furniture wax. It will stay clean longer and the colors won't wear off so quickly. — MRS. S.R.

DEAR POLLY — Any time an article of clothing needs special attention I slip a plastic bread-wrap fastener over the hanger hook before putting the garment in the closet. This reminds me it is not ready to wear, and it is easy to locate those items that need fixing. — VERNA.

DEAR POLLY — Try using your potato masher to get that hamburger broken into nice fine pieces. It is so quick and easy that way. — LEONA.

Summer Vacation

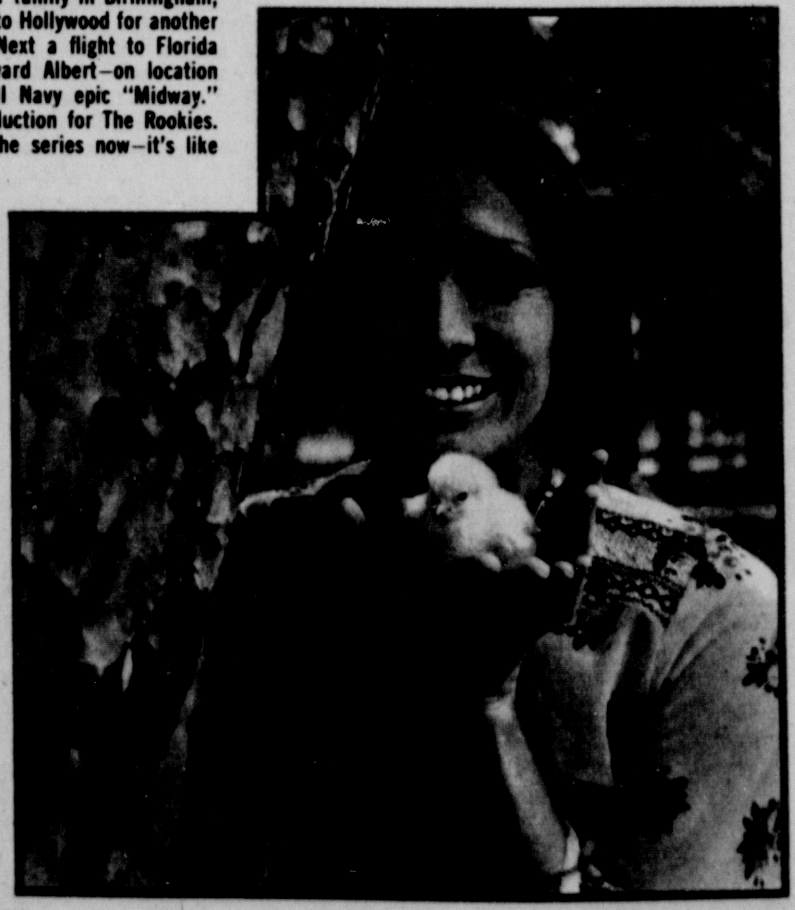

What does CBS series star Michael Learned (below, left) do when she's on vacation from The Waltons? Well, some things not radically different from what her alter ego, Olivia Walton, the homespun, loving wife and mother of the Walton family, does—or would do if she had the chance. During the past spring, after filming was completed, Miss Learned spent a lot of time baking bread, for example. Very Olivia-ish. Comments the actress: "I don't have the time to do it when I'm working, but I do love baking. All that aroma and kneading . . . and the taste—very gratifying to the senses, and lovely therapy." She spent some time at the family cabin in Northern California, and says she did a lot of dreamy walking, especially along the beach—things still right in character with Olivia. Ah, but then there's that other thing: Miss Learned also streaked her hair blonde. Would Olivia ever do that? Very likely not—but only because she wouldn't know of such a style during the 1930s in the Virginia mountains. If she did, Olivia still has enough girlish impishness about her to give it a try, too.

When ABC's The Rookies ended its third season, beautiful Kate Jackson (center) plunged into a carefully planned schedule of work. First, a starring role in the ABC Movie, "The Shrine of Lorna Love" with Robert Wagner. "Lorna is one of the most fascinating films I've done," Kate states. "It flashes back to Hollywood as it was long before I was born. I got to work with Sylvia Sydney, Dorothy Lamour, Joan Blondell and John Carradine, all of whom were such big stars in the thirties and forties. I loved them." After "Lorna," Kate went to New York for interviews, game show appearances and a bit of shopping before visiting her family in Birmingham, Alabama. Then it was back to Hollywood for another ABC Movie, "Rodriquez." Next a flight to Florida to visit her boyfriend Edward Albert—on location there for the World War II Navy epic "Midway." Then it was back into production for The Rookies. "I feel comfortable with the series now—it's like relaxing with old friends."

Summer vacation for Susan Howard (below, right) of NBC's Petrocelli meant a chance to return to the San Fernando Valley apartment she and her husband had moved into just before going to Tucson, where she and cast members Barry Newman and Albert Salmi live while the series is being filmed. "Living in a hotel room in Tucson, I couldn't really do my own cooking, which I love to do," says Susan. "I did have a party catered for the cast and crew one night, and we had Mexican food." A native of Marshall, Texas, Susan's specialties are Southern dishes, including turkey with cornbread dressing, chicken fried steak and apple pie. Being in Tucson meant postponing the decorating of their new apartment, which has a Spanish motif—with earthy colors like rust, brown and orange. Their home is now filled with many unusual pieces of furniture, including a 250-pound coffee table made of leaded glass and wrought iron, which was made for Susan by the prop man on Mannix after she completed a guest role on that show. Another prized possession is a gift from her father, an antique wash basin made of German silver from an old-fashioned private railroad car.

'MARY JANE GROWS UP'

Jack Perkins is the on-the-air reporter for NBC's News special, "Mary Jane Grows Up: Marijuana in the '70s," Sunday at 10PM. The program, produced by Joan Konner, will take an objective look at the pros and cons of marijuana through the eyes of people who smoke it, research scientists and legislators. Konner says: "There is a concern that marijuana has already become America's third recreational drug, and we are headed toward an abuse problem that many parallel alcohol and tobacco. It is now estimated by the government that there are 13,000,000 marijuana smokers in the United States today. The figure of those who have tried it is double that amount."

Some of those interviewed on the program include a grandmother who smokes marijuana, a 14-year-old junior high school student who uses it, and a 45-year-old lawyer, with a family of three, who smokes regularly. As Konner says, "They're doing something illegal and it does not bother them because they think that the laws are unreasonable and ought to be changed."

CLOSE-UP

DICK CAVETT: 'TALKED HIS WAY UP'

When Dick Cavett was a youngster in Lincoln, Nebraska, he got up his courage one night and spoke to a real celebrity—Bob Hope, who was visiting Cavett's native state to do a show. "I think I said something brilliant like 'Good show, Bob,' and Hope replied 'Thanks, kid,' " recalls Cavett, who has since talked his way into a position of his own in the entertainment world.

Although the urbane, wry Yale alumnus and former copy boy for TIME magazine is best known as a master conversationalist, a status he achieved as host of his own highly acclaimed talk show, Cavett has a variety of talents which he plans to demonstrate more fully on The Dick Cavett Show, his new summer series of four hour-long programs to be broadcast on four consecutive Saturday nights beginning Saturday (Aug. 16) at 10PM on CBS. "We're planning it as a blend of comedy skits, musical numbers and some conversation," explains Cavett who less than a year ago stated: "If I were to dream a program for myself, I suppose I might do a show that combines variety, drama, dance, interviews, a little of everything—all the things I ever wanted to do. Don't forget," he adds, "that I am a performer. I started out to be a performer. I like it and have missed it. Of course, there's a lot of performing in interviews, but it's not the same as acting."

Cavett's first work in television was actually in several dramatic programs, including a live "Playhouse 90" entitled "The Hiding Place" which starred Trevor Howard, James Mason and Richard Basehart. Cavett had a small role as a young Nazi. "Around that point I used to tell people that the life of a versatile character actor would be the most satisfying life I could imagine," he recalls. "In a more comedic vein, I would really love to have been a second banana on a variety show, like Carl Reiner or Howie Morris with Sid Caesar. Strange as it may or may not seem, I am versatile enough for that—constantly improvising and supervising myself and others. I think maybe I am made for that kind of thing."

In spite of the fact that Cavett has done on-air interviews with people, from Raquel Welch and Jane Fonda to Lord Laurence Olivier and Tennessee Williams, he claims to be less of an extrovert than is generally assumed. "I almost don't like to converse," he says. "That was one of the strange things about my job as talk show host. I could go to a party and sit in a corner and play with a puzzle all night or watch the dip turn yellow and be very happy."

Another facet of the Cavett talent that will be aired on his new summer series is his writing. "We are firming up some terrific professional writers for the summer series," says its title star, "But I also plan to do some of the material along with Christopher Porterfield (a pal from Yale days who co-authored the book "Cavett" with him). "Writing is another unsatisfied appetite for me. I didn't have time to write my own material on the talk show. The ad libs during the show were usually spontaneous."

Cavett developed his writing talent even before he began talking—professionally. While he was a copy boy on TIME and making the rounds of casting offices, he read an item that Jack Paar was worried about his opening monologue.

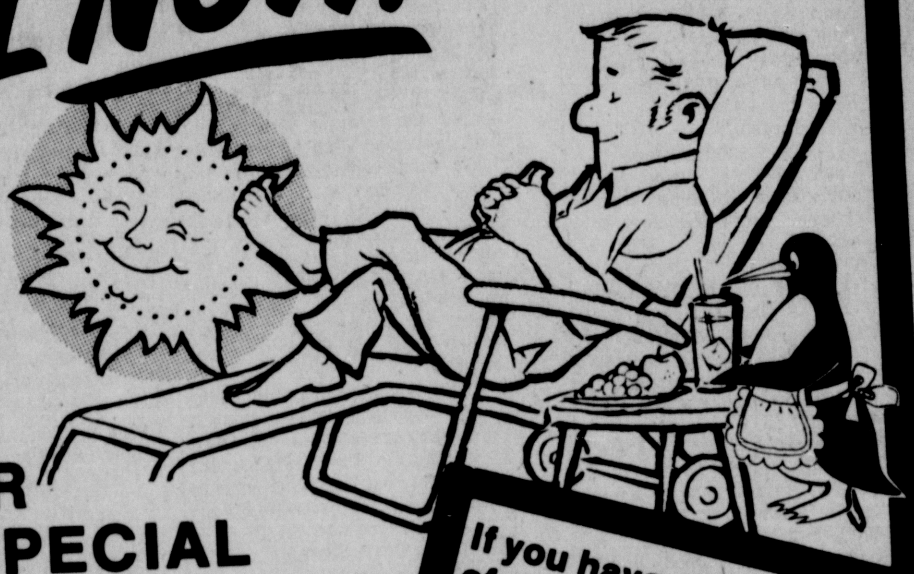

"So," recalls Cavett, "I sat myself down and wrote one, two pages long and carried it in my inner pocket as my most precious possession. "I went up to deliver it and by a stroke of luck ran into Paar near his office. Happily enough, he was in a receptive mood that day and used a bit of my material. So I wrote a second monologue and soon I was hired as a comedy writer on his staff."

When Paar left the "Tonight" Show, Cavett remained to write for the succession of guest hosts who followed—among them Groucho Marx, Jack E. Leonard, Jack Carter, Soupy Sales, Merv Griffin, Sam Levensen and Mort Sahl. Following the lead of his friend Woody Allen, a comedy writer-turned comedian, Cavett decided to write comedy for himself and began by appearing in the avant-garde places like Mr. Kelly's in Chicago, the Hungry I in San Francisco and the Bitter End in New York. The stints, including the one at the Bitter End, proved to be a beginning. He was soon appearing on top television programs, including those of former bosses Merv Griffin and Johnny Carson and later on The Ed Sullivan Show, which was produced by Bob Precht, who is producing Cavett's new summer series.

FOR ALAN ALDA

Do you really think it was a good idea to have the McLean Stevenson character on "M*A*S*H" get killed? My friends and I felt terrible about it.—E.G., Bloomington, Ill.

● Yes, and let me tell you why. One of the points we've been trying to make on our show is that in war, your best friend is standing next to you one minute and the next minute he's dead. Of all the hundreds of people who've died on "M*A*S*H" in three years, we were never quite able to make that point before—certainly not in the way we made it when McLean's character was killed. That's because his character was someone the public loved. Some people told me it turned out to be a great opportunity for them to discuss the subject of death with their kids. Other people felt it was a terrible burden for the same reason—they resented us for making them talk about death.

FOR LIBERACE

What was your most embarrassing experience?—Mary A. Steinbauer, Sacramento, Calif.

● At the Las Vegas Hilton I was to make my exit by flying offstage, Peter Pan-style. One night, the cable wire got stuck—leaving me dangling in midair, 25 feet up. I felt like a well-done side of beef in my red costume. And I looked it. I was hanging upside down.

Which movie star made the greatest impression on you? —M.R., Boise, Idaho

● Tyrone Power. A mutual friend was speaking to him and, without warning, gave me the receiver. I said the first thing that came into my head: "I'm trying to make it in the movies. What advice do you have?" He advised me all right. Not on acting, but how to deal with women, explaining: "If you can handle women, you can concentrate on your career. If you can't, your love life and your professional life will get into a mess."

FOR MRS. GERALD A. FORD

Do you believe in Women's Liberation?—Brian Glenn, Avon, Conn.

● I've been very lucky in having had the best of two worlds (wife-mother and an early satisfying career as a dancer as well). I feel a woman should have a choice. She should have an equal opportunity to pursue whatever kind of life she wants. By the same token, the woman who wants to stay home should approach her job with pride. It's important to reach our potential in whatever role we choose.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER

What do you think of the saying "beauty is only skin deep"? —K.L., Fremont, Calif.

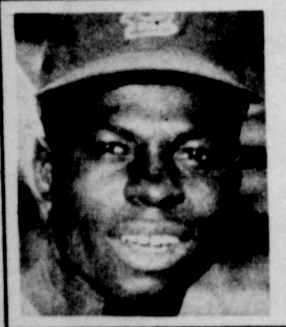

● So is UGLY. . . .

FOR ESTHER ROLLE of "Good Times"

You always look great on your show. Aren't you dressed a little too well for a "poor" family?—Mrs. L. E. Walter, Dubuque, Iowa

● How nice of you to say I look great—and that's the way every woman should try to dress. We follow a budget on the show and buy tailored wash-and-wear clothes that don't cost a lot of money.

FOR LOU BROCK, baseball star

I thought you had an even disposition, so I was surprised to read, after Steve Garvey was voted National League Most Valuable Player last year, that you said angrily you wouldn't accept the award if it were voted to you. Why? —John Miller, Canton, Ohio

● I held no resentment toward Garvey, even though I think I earned the MVP Award. In fact, I know I earned it. What I couldn't accept was the flood of phone calls from the same guys who had just selected Garvey. They wanted to know how I felt about not being picked.

FOR WILLIAM E. MILLER, 1964 Republican vice presidential candidate

As a National GOP Chairman and Sen. Barry Goldwater's running mate in 1964, do you see any chance that someone can force President Ford to drop Nelson Rockefeller from the 1976 ballot?—J. Banker, Amherst, N.Y.

● If President Ford is a viable candidate in 1976 and wants Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller as his running mate, there is only one man who could keep Mr. Rockefeller off the ticket. His name is Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller.

FOR BARBARA WALTERS

Why do you always interrupt your guests? It makes viewers think you're very conceited.—B. Leonard, Flint, Mich.

● I'm sorry you think that. I try hard not to interrupt, but we have a tight schedule and we're not allowed to exceed our time. Sometimes I interrupt because guests, unaware of this limit, aren't reaching their point, and I know they'll feel terrible about this when the show is over. I hate butting in, and do it as rarely as possible. I'm truly sad if it's interpreted as massaging my own ego.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Is there a rift between Judy Garland's daughters—Liza Minnelli and Lorna Luft? I've heard Lorna resents Liza's success.—L.A.R., Hot Springs, Ark.

● They're extremely close. In fact, Lorna idolizes her half-sister, about whom she says: "Talent is not inherited. You've either got it or you haven't. Liza's got it, and she's the world's greatest entertainer. We're both busy and don't see each other as often as we'd like. If a whole year went by during which we never spoke or wrote, it wouldn't change our relationship." Liza is the one Lorna turns to in her times of trouble. Liza, Lorna and Joey Luft were announced as guests of honor at a star-studded party recently in Judy's memory at New York's Rainbow Room. Lorna and Joey were there, but Liza wasn't. Critics seized on that as a sign of a family rift. Actually, Liza was in Mexico making a movie, and Lorna read her wire of apology.

By Rose Kennedy

Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Ron Moscati (Buffalo Courier Express)

Rose Kennedy is author of "Times to Remember," out in paperback from Bantam Books, $2.50.

How Rosemary Brought Strength to Us—And All the Nation's Retarded

"We were comforted then by Cardinal Newman's 'Meditation':

'God has created me to do Him some definite service....I am a link in a chain, a bond of connection between persons. He has not created me for naught. I shall do good....If I am in sickness, my sickness may serve Him;...if I am in sorrow, my sorrow may serve Him. He does nothing in vain....He may take away my friends. He may throw me among strangers. He may make me feel desolate, make my spirit sick, hide my future from me—still He knows what He is about.'"

Since the publication of my book, "Times to Remember," the one question I am asked most is this: "Mrs. Kennedy, how can you go on in the face of all the tragedy that has befallen you?" My answer does not satisfy everyone. I believe it is a matter of will—God's will and my will.

Early in life I decided that I would not be overcome by events. My philosophy has been that, regardless of the circumstances, I shall not be vanquished, but will try to be happy. Life is not easy for any of us. But it is a continual challenge, and it is up to us to be cheerful—and to be strong, so that those who depend on us may draw strength from our example.

When I discovered that my daughter Rosemary was retarded, my first reaction was shock and surprise. Like all mothers, I had prayed that my child would be born normal and healthy. In the birth of my two oldest sons, Joe and Jack, this prayer had been answered. Then, one and a half years after Jack's birth, I had to endure the anguish of every mother who learns that her child will have to face the world with a devastating handicap. We went from doctor to doctor seeking hope, but from all, we heard the same answer: "I'm sorry, Mrs. Kennedy, but we can do nothing." It was nerve-wracking, incomprehensible, and for my husband and me, unprecedented.

We were comforted then, as so often in our lives, by the magnificent "Meditation" written in the 19th century by Cardinal John Henry Newman, the famous English churchman and author. He wrote: "God has created me to do Him some definite service. He has committed some work to me which He has not committed to another. I have my mission. I may never know it in this life, but I shall be told it in the next. I am a link in a chain, a bond of connection between persons. He has not created me for naught. I shall do good. . . . If I am in sickness, my sickness may serve Him; in perplexity, my perplexity may serve Him; if I am in sorrow, my sorrow may serve Him. He does nothing in vain. He knows what He is about. He may take away my friends. He may throw me among strangers. He may make me feel desolate, make my spirit sick, hide my future from me—still He knows what He is about."

Kennedy Family Collection

Rosemary was born at home—a normal delivery. She was a beautiful child. But early in life Rosemary was different. She was slower to crawl, slower to walk and speak than her two brothers. I was told she would catch up later, but she never did.

The presence of Rosemary in our family was a constant illumination. Though we tried never to treat Rosemary any differently from the others, our children seemed to sense the great need for compassion, and they willingly gave it. The children tried to include Rosemary in everything they did. At Hyannis Port she would crew in their boat races. On the boat, they would give her simple tasks, and she usually could do what she was told. She was especially helpful with the jib and holding the mainsheet. Winning at anything always brought a marvelous smile to her face.

She was always one of the team, and it was just accepted and understood by the other children that Rosemary did not go sailing or swimming alone. She did what they did—even took tennis lessons when they did. She loved dances and pretty clothes, and when she went to a dance, looking very lovely, Jack would take her card and fill out some of her dances for her with his friends. I know that it wasn't easy for them, especially when Rosemary would say, "Why don't other boys ask me to dance?"

I feel sure that my sons and daughters learned much of their concern and desire to help those less fortunate from their experience with their own sister, Rosemary. When, in later life, some of them were in a position to influence public opinion and to shape policy, the lesson Rosemary taught them influenced the lives of all handicapped people everywhere.

Parents ask me whether all mentally retarded children should be kept at home. I do not think a single answer can apply to all cases. Certainly, there is no substitute for the physical and emotional stimulation that a mother and father (or brothers and sisters) can give to a child, especially in the first year or two of life. But just as there came a time when we felt Rosemary would benefit from being away from home, so every family may have to face the reality of not being able to care for their child.

Fortunately, we have traveled far from the days when the only alternative to home was a large, impersonal institution. In a growing number of states, laws are being passed that establish the right of every handicapped child to complete public education. The federal courts have ruled that mentally retarded children have a Constitutional right to such education. I think this is very important. There is a growing acceptance of mental and physical differences. People are learning that the retarded are far more like other people than they are different from them. And even those differences are no longer perceived as threatening.

When parents of handicapped children ask me for advice, here's what I tell them:

- I tell them that we can help prevent mental retardation in many instances. We can test for the mental disease phenylketonuria and control it by diet. We can vaccinate against measles and that even-more-subtle danger to babies, German measles. We now know the cause of mongolism, and perhaps in the near future, we'll be able to "cure" it. And we are aware that as much as 75 percent of all mental retardation is induced by poverty, poor medical care, inadequate diet, lack of affection and stimulation—not by genetic defect or birth accident.
- I tell people that there are many differences among children—some are short, some tall, some black, some white. Some children do not hear or see, walk or talk as well as other children. Some do not learn as quickly. None of these differences is a cause for shame or guilt.
- I tell parents that despite these differences children can and should be loved not only by their families but also by their neighbors and by the people of their community.
- I tell them that research has shown that a handicapped child need not destroy a family, but can actually strengthen it and deepen the love shared between

Sports Mini-Profile

JOE MORGAN:

A Rival Manager Says He's The Best Player in the League

Joe Morgan, the All-Star second baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, has proved there is still room for a little man in a major sport. At 5-7, 155 pounds, Joe may be the smallest man playing regularly in the big leagues, but he's one of the game's biggest players. Morgan was batting at a .350 clip at midseason and was getting more than his share of home runs, RBI's and stolen bases. During the past three years with the Reds, Morgan has averaged 21 home runs a year, 115 runs, 150 hits, 69 stolen bases and a batting average close to .300. He's also considered a genius in the field and has twice won the Golden Glove as the National League's best defensive second baseman. The man who is loudest in singing Morgan's praises is Walt Alston, manager of the rival Los Angeles Dodgers. "Morgan's got speed, power, plays good defense—what else is there to do? I gotta take him as the best player in the league," he says. . . . Morgan's ability to steal bases as well as drive in runs makes him a double-barreled threat. "The risk of injury is greater in stealing a base than on any other play," Joe admits. "I'm taking a chance every time I go for a steal. But I make every effort to avoid being hurt. Defensively, second base is a position where the injury-risk factor is also very high. This adds to the pressures on me in every game." . . . Injuries caught up with Morgan late last season. In one nationally televised contest, he swung savagely at a pitch by Mike Marshall of the Dodgers, missed it, and toppled in the dirt as his ankle gave way. He got up, insisted he could still bat despite the ankle injury, and knocked another pitch for a two-run homer. . . . Morgan also helps his team by his uncanny talent for drawing bases on balls. He has received more than 100 walks a season for five of the past six seasons. . . . Morgan is a native of Bonham, Texas, but began his professional baseball career in 1963, playing for Modesto, Calif. He moved up to the big leagues with Houston, and went to Cincinnati in 1972. He and his wife Gloria have two children. Ironically, they live off-season in the city of Cincinnati's arch-rival competitor—Oakland, Calif.—By Barry Abramson

Jobmanship

Clues to Your Hidden Job Abilities

"I don't like my job, but I don't know what kind of work I'd like any better" is a common complaint. Paying attention to the things that give you trouble on the job and the things that you succeed in off the job can help you discover your hidden job abilities. For example, you may often fall behind at work because you're tempted to spend time away from your desk on various errands and discussions. Is all that talk and errand-hopping really necessary, or are they just ways to provide the human contact you enjoy? If you find that you're most content when dealing with people and most restless when confined to tools, papers and objects, maybe it's a clue that you should seek a working-with-people job—like sales, for example. Your outside activities can provide other clues to the kind of job you would enjoy. If you're pleased when elected treasurer or financial leader of the group, realize that most people would shy away from such volunteer tasks. Your liking for the job probably reflects bookkeeping, numerical or business talent. Do you find it easy to take on the role of chairperson and keep your committee working enthusiastically? You may have two precious talents on which you could build a career: the ability to work with people and organizational skill. Does arranging for publicity for your group seem a fun and easy assignment? Maybe you'd be happy in public relations. The thing to remember is this: The responsibilities you accept with pleasure and succeed at in your volunteer leisure activities suggest your hidden paid-work abilities.—By S. R. Redford

Let me say this bluntly—

YOU CAN MANAGE ALMOST ALL BUT THE MOST GRIEVOUS ILLNESSES ENTIRELY BY YOURSELF

Without drugs . . . without cost . . . without painful apparatus . . . and (except in rare instances) entirely without the services of a doctor!

says Marsh Morrison, Doctor of Chiropractic

How? Primarily By Learning How To STOP INTERFERING WITH THE FLOW OF LIFE FORCES THROUGHOUT YOUR BODY—As Effortlessly As This:

Yes, Dear Friend—
I say again bluntly, based on FORTY YEARS as a healing practitioner:
The human system wants to be well!

Men and women become sick because their bodies suffer from certain mechanical breakdowns—primarily blocked or pinched nerves in their spinal cords, that prevent healing life forces from being transmitted to one or more of their vital organs!

If these mechanical breakdowns—if these nerve blocks persist—these illnesses will go on for years! And if these people turn, in their agony, to drug-dispensing doctors—who try to treat these mechanical ailments by such chemical means—the results will be, in case after case, exactly what I have seen over the past forty years! These people will continue to remain sick!

But If You Are Suffering From Any Of The Racking Diseases Listed Below, I SAY THIS HONESTLY TO YOU:

You can unblock these pinched nerve pathways YOURSELF!

Once you are shown how, you, in your own home, without medical help at all, can free hitherto blocked nerve lines! And therefore allow them to transmit again the healing life force, and the proper "get-back-to-work" power to those sick organs!

Yes, the renewed-health answers to all these agonizing diseases are ridiculously simple . . . almost effortless . . . natural and effective . . . and (I must say it again and again) by-pass the doctor except in the most extreme cases!

For example:

I say that better nerve supply is so powerful in cases of baldness that I have treated, that (to give just one instance) it turned a bald band-leader into a man who actually looked as hairy as a hippie! And I give you full details of this proof on page 24 of my new book!

I say that better nerve supply is a nearly foolproof aid to shoulder and upper arm neuritis and bursitis. And I give you full proof—plus instant instructions—on page 34 of my book!

I say that better nerve supply—gained in your own home by one simple mechanical adjustment that I show you—allows full Life Force to come through once again to that most vital organ of your entire body . . . your heart! That it is the first, almost effortless step, in a "New Heart Program," that ends up by actually building you extra arteries to take the load off those that have already been narrowed or even blocked completely!

Yes, I say that better nerve supply—the simple techniques of easily, safely, painlessly unblocking pinched nerves all over your body—is the Gold Key to getting rid of lumbago and sciatica, sacroiliac and backaches, curvatures, disc problems and swaybacks (see page 49) . . . to revitalizing the digestive system in as little as 20 short days, and therefore keeping waste products from breaking out in ugly skin problems, or agonizing, waste-caused arthritis (see page 79 on) . . . to instantly treat even such conditions as tortuous trifacial neuralgia, loss of hearing, facial rash, drooping eyelids, eye and cheek tics, and especially headaches of almost any kind, including migraines not ammenable to any other treatment!

But Freeing Blocked Nerves Is Only The First Great Step To Rejuvenating Your Health! There Are 4 More—All Just As Easy—All Just As Powerful—All Making The Most At Last OF YOUR BODY'S NATURAL HEALING POWERS!

They include such ridiculously simple "wonder-workers" as pulling the poisons out of your blood stream . . . using natural food-medicines to duplicate the effects of dangerous drugs, without the side effects of these drugs, and therefore conquer many painful ailments, simply by enjoying your meals . . . even a special way to walk, for a few minutes a day, that reverses at last the gravitational down-pull that, right now, is making you old years before your time!

Using these simple, natural, mechanical ways to treat illness—without cost, without drugs, and without doctors—I have produced the following immediate results! And so can you!

WHAT CHIROPRACTORS SAY ABOUT MARSH MORRISON, D.C., Ph.C., F.I.C.C.

"To say your work is marvelous is really an understatement. I have been in practice 20 years and wish this knowledge had been available sooner." —Dr. H. J. Bates, Enid, Oklahoma

"In forty-seven years as a chiropractor I have invested much money and time for techniques and consider Dr. Morrison's the most practical and more effective than all others combined." —Dr. Elmer B. Shipley, Terre Haute, Indiana

"The quintessence of Chiropractic knowledge. For years I've searched for more ways of helping more sick people get well faster. This weekend my dream and desire has become an actuality." —Frederick Doughty—Beck, D.C., New Orleans, La.

"I, myself, received immediate relief of chronic symptoms." —Dr. Jeanne Gale, D.C., Phoenix, Arizona

"Have had 20 years in Physical Medicine . . . 15 years in chiropractic. Have taken every course. But this is absolutely the greatest." —V. J. Puertas, D.C., Vancouver, Wash.

"After having used Dr. Morrison's technique for over 6 months, I can, and do, strongly recommend it to every doctor in our profession." —Dr. Arnold C. Sikes, Concord, N.C.

"The techniques are very simple, but effective . . . nothing short of magic. Dr. Morrison, you truly are one of the 'Chiropractic Greats.'" —Dr. Kern Chester, Paragould, Ark.

"Your techniques are immediately effective, almost like magic, and can be learned right away. I am a far better chiropractor than before . . ." —Dr. John Herman, Chicago, Ill.

MY FILES ARE FILLED WITH CASES THAT READ LIKE MIRACLES . . . TO GIVE JUST A FEW!

RELIEF FROM EMPHYSEMA—Mr. Patrick J. had a severe and long-standing case of emphysema. One day, he coughed so uncontrollably hard that his dentures came loose and almost choked him. I showed him 3 simple MIRACLE Secrets—and the results were immediate and magnificent. Suddenly, he could breathe more freely and easily. He said he even felt like hiking again—an urge he hadn't felt for years!

SERIOUS HEART AILMENT RELIEVED—Mr. Whitney S. was a man with a serious heart ailment, truly a cardiac cripple. He could hardly walk without wheezing and puffing. The first thing I did was to take all his medicines and flush them down the drain. Then I gave him the special heart-healing secrets of THE MIRACLE BODY TUNE-UP . . . to relieve pinched nerves to the heart so that they were free to transmit functional power. "Say, I enjoy this," Mr. S. enthused, "I don't have to wheeze . . . I'm breathing easier." Eventually, he felt so good he was able to do push-ups!

"I'm mad as hops!" he exploded. "After all that money I spent on doctors! This is like a miracle."

EXCRUCIATING LEG PAIN RELIEVED—Dr. R., a university professor, had a truly violent seizure of sciatica. The pain was so great that beads of perpiration dripped from his forehead as he attempted to stand, much less walk. He was groggy from drugs that doctors had given him. I showed him how to relieve the pressure of his sciatic nerve—which was rubbing against bone—and he experienced immediate relief. "This does it!" he exclaimed. "I've got no pain at all—for the first time!"

ASTHMA AND VARICOSE VEINS RELIEVED—Helen B. was a stout lady in her 40's with chronic bronchial asthma and legs bulging with varicose veins. I quickly showed her two MIRACLE secrets that brought her blessed relief from her leg problem. Her asthma was even simpler to relieve—perhaps the simplest of all. Just as she was having an attack, I showed her another MIRACLE secret which relieved it at once, to her great sigh of relief!

A MIRACLE THAT CAN WORK FOR YOU!!!

To me it's all quite common. I see it every day. To others, it's a miracle. But the miracle is not mine. I do not claim my methods heal—no physician can claim that. The body itself does the healing. All you do is let it take over . . . the way I show you!

As with all methods of self-treatment, if the guidance suggested in Dr. Morrison's new book does not bring you the relief you desire after a reasonable period of time, we suggest that you then consult your doctor.

Yes, Your System Wants To Be Well! And You Can Make It That Way . . . All By Yourself! Let Me Prove This To You—Without Your Risking A Penny!

So, stop wasting your hard-earned cash on needless and ineffective drugs . . . patent medicines . . . even doctor visits . . . when you can banish all these maladies, and unblock the Healing Life Force in your own body quickly and effectively in the privacy of your own home. Don't waste another minute; return the coupon—TODAY!

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Enemy-Hunting and Bachelor-Hunting: How Do We Behave?

True or False: Women who wonder, "Where are all the unmarried men?" should cast their eyes in a westward direction. (See number 2)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The place you're most likely to get shot is in a Far Western state, where "men are men" and the tradition of the Old West frontier gunfighter still prevails.

2. Women who wonder, "Where are all the unmarried men?" should cast their eyes in a westward direction.

3. Most men in the U.S. are wary of strangers and suspicious of people they don't know well.

4. People from particular regions of the U.S. tend to have certain character and personality traits in common.

ANSWERS

1. False. A National Center for Health Statistics report on U.S. homicides shows that the region where a quick temper and an itchy trigger finger are most likely to go hand in hand—as reflected by the homicide rate—is the Southeastern sector. The survey shows that the place you're least likely to get ventilated by a bullet for minding somebody else's business too pointedly—or casting a roving eye in the wrong direction—is New England.

2. True—as shown by a leading insurance company's recent analysis of census statistics. Findings: California and New York scored at the top in the unmarried-men sweepstakes—each with over two million single gentlemen. California had the inside track, however, because, as the investigators point out, "the vast majority of men marry at ages 18 to 29, and special interest attaches to single men at these ages." California had the largest number of men in this age bracket—over a million. New York state was the runner-up, with 849,000. Pennsylvania, Texas and Illinois all were in competition for third place—each of them with about half a million single men of the most marriageable age.

3. True—as indicated by a nationwide survey of a representative cross section of American men, ranging in age from 16 to 64, conducted by the University of Michigan. Each person was interviewed with respect to his attitude toward his fellowmen. Results: "More than 50 percent of all the men stated that they tend to be on their guard with 'people who are somewhat more friendly than expected' and almost half agreed with the statement, 'I used to think most people told the truth, but now I know otherwise.' " As for other attitudes: While only 15 percent of the men thought that the statement, "I don't seem to get what's coming to me," was true, more than twice as many thought that the statement, "At times I get a raw deal out of life," was true for them.

4. True—according to the results of a study of over 6,000 men and women conducted by a team of behavioral specialists from the Institute of Personality and Ability Testing, Champaign, Ill., and Arizona State University. Most noteworthy findings: West Coast men and women scored highest in the following personality characteristics: self-confidence, unpretentiousness and self-sufficiency. They also scored high in being trusting and tolerant of others, and they were given to experimenting with new concepts, new ideas, etc. People of the Mountain States and Southwest areas were the least social-minded. They scored highest in terms of being reasonably content and emotionally calm. Subjects from the Midwest and Central states were characterized as being the most hardworking, conscientious and tough-minded. Another quality they tended to reflect: a stubborn independence. Men and women of the Northeastern region were found to share these characteristics: They were more impersonal in their dealings with others, tended to be more reserved, more practical and realistic. And they were also given to experimentation with new things, new practices and concepts.

More Amazing Than Acupuncture?

At last! China reveals her 1300 year old weight-loss and youth restoring health secret.

© 1975

By Stuart Nolan

Today, hundreds of work-saving devices save Americans a lot of elbow grease and give us all more leisure time. On the other hand, our bodies are suffering for it!

Think about the exercise most Americans get. A short walk to the garage where the automobile takes over with its power steering and brakes to do all the work. Even automatic garage door openers swing up the garage door with just a touch of a finger. Yard work is yard play today with riding mowers, electric clippers and edgers.

And certainly, the American housewife isn't getting the exercise she did in grandma's day. Automatic dishwashers, self-defrosting refrigerators, electric can openers, mixers and ovens that clean themselves have cut the kitchen work by at least 80%. Why even the walk to the backyard garbage can is eliminated by disposals and incinerators.

Statistics show that 80% of Americans are overweight. And did you know that more than 165,000 Americans die from heart disease each year? Or, that the United States is ranked 18th in the world for life expectancy of men and 11th for women?

Our health is our most precious possession, but our richness is robbing us of it. While pollution is a problem, when are we going to begin doing something about the wasting of our bodies?

If you're an average American, your weight has probably been a personal problem to you. You've tried various diets and perhaps lost a few pounds only to gain them back again. And if you're like most people, you don't stay with an exercise program long enough for it to do any good. Why? Because most exercises are strenuous and time-consuming and Americans have little time.

What's the answer? Is it to give up your air-conditioned car and walk to work? Get out the old scrub board and sell the washer? Live on salads and black coffee? No! Believe it or not, you can be fit and trim without working for it or giving up the good things in life. Have your cake and eat it too.

Strangely enough the answer to the problem isn't new. It is over 1300 years old. The Taoist monks of ancient China had a worse problem than we do. They were very intelligent men who sat and meditated continuously without hardly moving at all.

Although the meditation helped improve their minds, they realized that their bodies were suffering for it. As a result these thinking men developed a series of movements that exercised every muscle of their entire body in just a few minutes without strain. These exercises were called Tai Chi. The Monks developed Tai Chi by studying and imitating the slow, natural movements of wild animals.

The ancients also found that while Tai Chi strengthened and revitalized the body, it helped the mind to function with more awareness. They were amazed at the healing power of Tai Chi.

Only the holy men of China knew of Tai Chi for hundreds of years. Their secret has just recently been discovered by Americans and its popularity is spreading because Tai Chi works!

Many doctors and physical educators are recommending Tai Chi as an exercise gentle and easy enough even for those in ill health. It can be performed at home, in the office, or even in a space as small as a hallway. Tai Chi requires no special equipment and your exercise will be over before you have built up a sweat or begun to huff and puff. Tai Chi is seen as a great benefit for weight control and improving general health and has been endorsed in many popular magazines such as Vogue, Cosmopolitan, Newsweek and Harper's Bazaar.

But weight control is just one of the many benefits of Tai Chi. The following is a list of the wonders of Tai Chi:

- Tai Chi tones every muscle of the body to give you a slim, firm, younger-looking appearance.
- Tai Chi strengthens lower back muscles, making you almost invulnerable to backaches.
- Tai Chi stimulates and increases blood circulation, giving you new vitality and lowering your blood pressure.
- Tai Chi gives you wonderful tranquility and peace-of-mind. You'll relax and sleep better at night.
- Tai Chi will stimulate your senses and greatly improve your love life.
- Tai Chi strengthens the muscles of your heart without straining them. It can be the ideal exercise for many heart patients. (Check with your doctor.)
- Tai Chi sharpens your mind and helps you to function with more awareness, clarity and concentration.
- Tai Chi relaxes the nervous system to give you a better disposition and control of your temper.
- Finally, Tai Chi increases breathing capacity and supplies more oxygen to your blood supply and body tissues. (It takes oxygen for the fat-burning process.)

If you are serious about becoming physically fit and losing weight, remember this. Tai Chi has been recommended by hundreds of health authorities. It has worked for thousands of people for more than a thousand years. It will work for you.

The Consumer Publishing Company of Canton, Ohio has commissioned a master instructor in the art of Tai Chi to write a complete course in Tai Chi. The course contains numerous photo illustrations and is presented in a soft cover book. For a limited time, you can obtain this masterpiece of health secrets at a $6.95 introductory price.

And, Consumer Publishing Company offers this unusual guarantee. After you receive your Tai Chi course, show it to your family doctor and get his opinion. If he doesn't feel that it's everything we've told you it is, Consumer Publishing Company will send your money back to you. It's that simple.

To get your Tai Chi course, just write your name and address on a slip of paper with the word "Tai Chi" at the top. Send it along with $6.95 to Consumer Publishing Company, Dept.C-30, 401 Market Avenue, N., Canton, Ohio 44702. Again, if you or your family doctor aren't completely satisfied with the course for any reason, simply return the book and your money will be immediately refunded.

Rosemary

By Rose Kennedy

brothers and sisters, husbands and wives.

● I reassure them that most of the mentally retarded—more than 80 percent of them—will be able to learn, to read, to sing, to respond, to grasp life with eagerness and joy.

Then I tell them this: That handicapped children will try even harder when they are praised or rewarded. Rosemary loved compliments. Every time I would say, "Rosemary, you have the best teeth and smile in the family," she would smile for hours. She liked to dress up, wear pretty clothes, have her hair fixed and her fingernails polished. Even if I said to her no more than, "Rosemary, that's the most beautiful hair ribbon," she would be thrilled!

I tell parents that as their children grow older, they will find even greater understanding and help in training to become a real and useful part of the community. When Jack became President, it was impossible for any retarded person to get a job in the federal government—civil service regulations prevented the government from giving employment to anyone under a certain IQ. Jack had this struck from the regulations, and now, we have upwards of 20,000 retarded men and women employed in the various branches of government—some of them earning salaries of $10,000 to $15,000 a year. More than 600 have received awards for outstanding performance.

This month, in Mt. Pleasant, Mich., 3,000 mentally retarded youngsters will compete in the Fourth International "Special Olympics." The Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., Foundation, which my husband and I established almost 30 years ago in honor of our departed oldest son, Joe, created this program in 1968 and still sponsors it. The games invite more than 400,000 boys and girls from all over the world to compete with each other. In 15,000 local meets and tournaments they take part in track and field, basketball, swimming, floor hockey, gymnastics, volleyball, bowling, ice skating and many other events.

How gratifying it is that our society is opening doors and hearts to the mentally retarded.

My vision, and I hope yours, is a world in which mental retardation, like polio, will be almost entirely eradicated. Then and only then can we say, in the words of St. Paul: "I have fought the good fight. I have finished the course. I have kept the faith."

JULIET PROWSE
About Frank and Elvis. . . .

Juliet Prowse, whose name was romantically linked with Frank Sinatra's and who has costarred with Elvis Presley, talked to FAMILY WEEKLY about them: "Frank is like quicksilver. He has tremendous mood changes, incredible energy and is one of the most interesting men I know. He paints, is an avid reader and is highly intelligent. He doesn't hit first; he only hits back." On Presley: "Elvis has changed in the last three years. Professionally, I mean. There's something wrong with him psychologically, and it's very deep-rooted. I saw him in Vegas a few months ago, and it was depressing. He's gotten fat, and doesn't 'work' any more. He just walks through his act, which is wrong. I don't respect entertainers who do that. Having a gigantic name isn't enough. People pay good money to see a good show, and performers should give their all. But, on a personal level, he's still as sweet as he always was."

Who says soap operas are full of suds? While many women are seeking new avenues of fulfillment and new freedoms, 29-year-old Byrna Laub of Mountain View, Calif., is content to sit at home glued to a television set (six of them, actually). Byrna is one of thousands of women who are "hooked on the soaps." But Byrna has turned her avocation into a vocation—she writes the "Daytime Serial Newsletter" for all those people who want to keep up with all the divorces, emotional breakdowns, murders and love triangles of their favorite daytime stars, but have other commitments that prevent regular viewing. Byrna's newsletter has a circulation of 12,000 and it's growing fast; but how long can she sit in front of six television sets, five days a week from mid-morning to late afternoon, and subject herself to so much pain and trauma?

GEORGE WASHINGTON
The father of male chauvinism?

Although George Washington stands out as one of the most revered leaders in our history, his views on the fair sex would make him an unlikely presidential candidate in 1976. "During the course of the American Revolution, hundreds of women followed their husbands, brothers, sons and lovers to camps and battle areas, where they cooked, washed and mended clothing, nursed the wounded, and boosted the soldiers' morale. General George Washington, a harsh disciplinarian, was always nettled by the presence of these women. The feisty leader rebuked those who were not nurses for refusing to grow food crops on farms for his troops. He was compelled, however, to allow a limited number of women on these marches, well aware that many of his soldiers would either desert or refuse reenlistment if their women were not allowed to be with them. The best Washington could do was grumble in his written orders: 'Women are to march with the baggage. Women are especially forbid any longer, under any license at all, to ride in the waggons. The multitude of women in particular, especially those who are pregnant, or have children, are a clog upon every movement.'" From "Weathering the Storm: Women of the American Revolution," by Elizabeth Evans (Scribners, $12.50).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

INVASION OF PRIVACY

I was happily reading the paper,
A contented look on my face,
When a roaring, relentless monster
Of a sudden invaded the place.

My wife seemed in tow of this creature,
But she really urged it ahead.
My eardrums were very near breaking,
I held both hands to my head.

In moments my peace had been shattered
And gone was my pleasant demeanor.
Oh, Nature abhors a vacuum,
I abhor, though, a vacuum cleaner.

Truman Capote tells about the fellow who went to dinner at a friend's apartment on the 17th floor of a Manhattan apartment house. While his hostess attended to some last-minute details in the kitchen, he played with her German shepherd. He threw a rubber bone several times and the dog went to fetch it. Then, throwing harder than he intended, he threw the bone out the terrace door and over the railing. Incredibly, the dog followed it out to the terrace and bounded over the railing to the street, 17 floors below. Horrified, the young man began pondering what to say. When they finally sat down to dinner, he looked at the hostess and said, "Perhaps it's just my imagination, but your dog seemed rather depressed tonight. . . ."

While driving through the beautiful, rolling Ohio countryside, I was pointing out the streams, Indian mounds and farm animals to my six-year-old son. As we passed a hillside with sheep lying in the warmth of a sunny afternoon he exclaimed, "Look, Dad, sheep bumps!"

—Wayne F. Browning

"Look at that!" boasted the baseball rooter. "It's only the first inning and we've got a man on every base."

"So what?" replied his lovely companion. "The other team has a man on every base too." —Thomas LaMance
